CIVILIAN TRIAL FOR POLICE ON BEATING SEEN

Four Men Suspended as Grand Jury Probe Is Ordered.

REICHELDERFER ASKS INDEPENDENT INQUIRY

Injury to Harker Admitted, "Before or After Arrest," by Inspector Stoll.

Four District policemen who were suspended yesterday for alleged complicity in the beating of James Harker, 24-year-old housebreaking suspect, reported exclusively in last Sunday's Post, may be brought to trial before an impartial board of prominent citizens selected entirely outside the Police Department.

Dr. Luther C. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, last night said he was "looking up the law" in the matter. Superintendent of Police Henry G. Pratt recommended that such a board be appointed.

Developments came swiftly yesterday, following Inspector Louis J. Stoll's report admitting that Harker was beaten "either just before his arrest or while in custody."

Four Are Suspended.

They were:

1. Superintendent of Police Pratt suspended from duty Detective James Mostyn, whom Harker accused of striking him, and Policemen W. C. Groomes, William R. Laflin and William T. Burroughs, in the room when the alleged beating took place.

2. Dr. Reichelderfer wrote the district attorney's office, asking "a thorough, unbiased and independent investigation" of the third-degree beating charges.

3. Acting United States Attorney William H. Collins replied that he planned to cooperate in every way, and this morning will ask the grand jury to investigate the whole subject of third-degree beatings, beginning Tuesday.

Prejudicial Move Charged.

4. Replying to what he termed the "gratuitous" statement of Inspector Stoll that he believed Harker guilty of the robbery of which he is accused, S. McComas Hawken, Harker's attorney, charged that Inspector Stoll "is trying to prejudice the public mind against my client."

5. Investigation of the alleged beating of another First Precinct prisoner, Henry Johnson, who charges he was struck with a strip of rubber hose August 3 by the same men who assaulted Harker, was begun by Inspector Stoll.

Police were advised of similar charges made by at least two other prisoners, Robert E. Martz, 20, charged with first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Irvin Zirkle in a Ninth street poolroom several months ago, and Frederick C. Sampson, 25, charged with housebreaking and larceny. Attorney Hawken told a Post reporter he will be in a position to present charges of beatings at the hands of police on behalf of three other former prisoners.

Plan Independent Inquiry.

Acting District Attorney Collins told The Post he probably will ask the grand jury only to go into housebreaking charges against Harker, at the outset, so that the allegations against him might have dispassionate consideration.

In view of the additional charges of police brutality that have come to light, and the attention de-

Deputy of Mexico Slain in Congress

Two Others Are Wounded as Discussion Ends in Shooting Fray.

Mexico City, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Deputy Manuel H. Ruiz, of Jalisco, was shot dead and two other members of Congress were wounded tonight when a discussion in the Chamber of Deputies ended in a shooting affray in which more than 60 shots were fired. Police intervened and restored order after several minutes of fighting.

Ruiz had sought to defend the Governor of Jalisco against charges brought before the chamber by other members of Congress with a view to having the governor deposed. Shouts greeted the Jalisco deputy's efforts to make himself heard and the president of the chamber ordered the session ended.

At this point Ruiz made himself heard above the uproar, shouting that the attempt to cut the meeting short was "cowardice." This led to the shooting and Ruiz fell with eight bullets in his body. Deputy Sebastian Allende was so gravely injured that it was feared he would die. Deputy Esteban Garcia Alba was wounded in the hand.

Unmasked Robbers Lock Cashier in Vault

Blythe, Ga., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Three unmasked bandits late today locked T. M. Nickles, cashier of the Bank of Blythe, in the bank's vault, robbed the bank of about $1,000, and escaped in an automobile.

The cashier was released from the vault by P. D. Reese, vice president, who heard Nickles' cries for help.

New Torture Cases to Be Given Jurors

When the grand jury next week attempts to uncover what goes on behind the closed doors of precinct sergeants' rooms before a prisoner confesses, the alleged beating of at least eight prisoners, in addition to assault charges brought by James Harker, housebreaking suspect, will be aired before the inquisitors.

Stories of beatings every bit as brutal as those related by Harker were told a Post reporter who last night interviewed Robert E. Martz, 20, and Frederick C. Sampson, 25, in the District Jail.

Martz, charged with first-degree murder, and Sampson, charged with housebreaking and larceny, supplied the names of two other alleged recipients of beatings. Both of these last night admitted the beatings, but asked that their names be withheld because they feared retaliation.

Attorney S. McComas Hawken, whose account of Harker's alleged injuries at the hands of police, first appeared Sunday morning in The Post, last night said he will soon be

SLEMP DETAILS AID HE GAVE TO BISHOP

Tells Nye Cleric Asked His Advice in 1929 About Defying Senate.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate campaign funds committee heard yesterday from C. Bascom Slemp, Virginia Republican leader, of the arrangements whereby Bishop James Cannon, jr., obtained more than $65,000 as chairman of the Virginia anti-Smith committee in 1928.

Mr. Slemp, once secretary to former President Coolidge, told the committee that he introduced Edwin C. Jameson, New York capitalist, to Bishop Cannon in September, 1928. He said that the bishop asked for $50,000 "in cash" to finance the anti-Smith drive in the South. This sum was later increased.

Today the committee will examine half a dozen bankers in its search to determine how Bishop Cannon used this money. Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, has charged that the bishop failed to account for all of it.

At the resumption of the inquiry into the use of funds by the Southern Methodist churchman yesterday,

Justice Holmes Found To Be Much Improved

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The condition of Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the Supreme Court of the United States, who has been suffering from a cold, was reported greatly improved today. The 90-year-old jurist contracted the cold last Saturday.

Dr. Peer P. Johnson, of the Beverly Hospital, who is attending Justice Holmes, said: "Mr. Justice Holmes will be watched very carefully for the next few days. He is tired out. I do not see any immediate danger."

Italo-Vatican Accord Is Believed Imminent

Vatican City, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Although settlement of the controversy between the church and the Italian government is considered possible within a short time by those following the negotiations it is believed probable that a month or two will be required to reach accord.

The government refused today to comment on the possibility of immediate results from negotiations being carried on by Father Tacchi Venturi and Ambassador de Vecchi, Italy's representative at the Holy See, but church circles were optimistic.

COL. LINDBERGH ENDS FLIGHT AT TOKYO AIRPORT

7,132-Mile Vacation Hop From America Is Completed.

WIFE FIRST WOMAN TO FLY OVER PACIFIC

Escort Planes Greet Pair on Arrival at Mouth of Kuji River.

Kasumigaura Naval Airport, Tokyo (Wednesday), Aug. 26 (U.P.).—The adventurous Lindberghs completed their 7,132-mile "vacation tour" from New York to Japan today.

For Col. Charles A. Lindbergh it was the end of his third long-distance flight, aside from cross-country trips in the United States. To Anne Lindbergh went the honor of being the first woman to cross the Pacific in an airplane.

Pontoons of the sturdy Lockheed monoplane, marked by storms of the North Pacific that at times threatened to stop the Lindberghs short of their goal, touched the canal of the Naval airport at 2:10 p. m. (12:10 a. m. E. S. T.).

Joined by Escort Planes.

The plane came down exactly one minute after it had first been sighted.

Col. Lindbergh was joined by escort planes at the mouth of the Kuji River.

Multitudes crowded against especially constructed barriers, shouting and waving, as the big black and yellow monoplane settled on the safe waters of the airport.

A small army of Japanese and American officials waited at the water's edge to greet the flier and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Landing of the plane and the termination of the Lindberghs' 7,000-mile flight from New York was the signal for commencement of a festive week in Japan.

Three navy planes guided Col. Lindbergh to his selected anchorage. Three other planes, representing the army, circled over the crowd.

As the plane taxied to the way, sailors grasped it and made it fast, under the watchful eye of the flier.

The 600-mile flight from Menuro had been completed in 5 hours and 48 minutes.

Col. Lindbergh was first to step from the cockpit. The crowd was yelling "Banzai," the Japanese cheer of welcome. He waved. Then Mrs. Lindbergh stepped down to the pontoon of the plane.

Officials Extend Greetings.

High officials of Japan and representatives of the American Embassy greeted them as they stepped from the craft. Behind them were the thousands of shouting Japanese—urchins, business men, people from all walks of life—straining against the

Ransom for Boy By Pigeon Asked

Phone Call From Kidnapers Answers Refusal by Renewing Demand.

New York, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—A demand that he send $2,000 ransom by carrier pigeon in return for the release of his 16-year-old son was received today by Edgar F. Hazelton.

The ingenious kidnapers of Edgar, jr., furthermore directed the boy's father to Parsons boulevard and Forty-sixth street, Flushing, where they said the pigeon would be waiting. Hazelton went there and found the bird in a box. He wrote a note saying he would not send the money unless he received a letter from his son proving he was safe. He released the pigeon. Then he went home and later received a telephone call.

"We will enter into no communication with you," said a man's voice. "Your son is with us and if you want to see him again you will do as I direct. Go to Parsons boulevard and Seventy-sixth avenue and you will find another pigeon. Send that money." Detectives are working on the case and Hazelton has not sent the money.

Army Board to Investigate Failure to Sink Mt. Shasta

War Department Will Name Experts at Request of Maj. Gen. Fechet; Personal Efficiency Not to Be Called in Question.

(Associated Press.)

At the request of Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of Air Corps, the War Department will name a board of officers to investigate the recent failure of nine Langley Field bombing planes to sink the steamship Mount Shasta off the Virginia Capes.

The board's investigations will be technical in character in an effort to determine the difficulties which confronted the unsuccessful operations. It will not inquire into personnel efficiency, since preliminary data in the hands of the Air Corps has indicated the causes of the failure to sink the old Shipping Board vessel were mainly technical.

Gen. Fechet in requesting the appointment of the board of officers asked that it include one of the brigadier generals of the Air Corps and an officer of the general staff. Other officers will be named by Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bridges, the adjutant general.

General staff officers last night described the board as a routine ap-

Rosedale Keeps Title As 2,200 Vie for Post Playground Medals

Champions Clinch Victory in Last Event of Vast City Track Meet at Central Stadium—Johnson Team Second, Columbia Road Third—Broad Jump Record Falls.

Twenty-two hundred boys, carrying the colors of 52 playgrounds, and ranging in size from 3 feet to 6, and in weight from 50 pounds to 200, made of Central Stadium yesterday a vast moving picture shimmering in waves of heat, as a fleet squad of youngsters representing Rosedale swept to victory for the second consecutive year in the annual playground track meet. With Rosedale's victory went The Washington Post Trophy, emblematic of the city title, and a profusion of The Post's coveted individual medals.

Rosedale, coached by Ben Kail, who guided Georgetown Playgrounds to victory in 1925, staved off defeat at all turns of the meet yesterday. Johnson Playground, runner-up for the championship won by the Northeast group last year, pressed the defending champions to the utmost limit. It was the old indefinable "stretch drive" which Rosedale must credit for its victory. Trailing Johnson with the end of the meet in sight, two plucky Rosedale relay teams, of the 70 and 100 pound classes, pounded down the cinder ways to carry their police billies to thrilling first places.

Rosedale wound up with 25 points, largely on the strength of its second and third places, while Johnson again slipped into second position, this time with 18 points, barely ahead of Columbia Road, with 16. Hayes took fourth place with 14, a point ahead of Barnard. Twenty-four of the 52 contesting teams scored points and today sport Post medals, in gold, silver and bronze.

That existing records are well fortified with the armor of their own excellence was seen as only one record fell in an entire day given over to the assault upon established marks. Wilbur Robinson, of Barnard, soared 20 feet 7 inches in the unlimited class running broad jump to smash, by 3¾ inches, the mark set by Sweeney, of Johnson, in 1930.

The half-mile run more than justified the "main event" billing it received before the meet. Almost guaranteed to produce thrills, an un-

LEA, FOUND GUILTY, GETS 6 TO 10 YEARS

Is Convicted of Defrauding Bank of $1,136,000; Planning Appeal.

Asheville, N. C., Aug 25 (A.P.).—Col. Luke Lea, Tennessee newspaper publisher and former United States senator, today was sentenced to serve from six to ten years in North Carolina State Prison upon being convicted of defrauding the Central Bank & Trust Co. here of $1,136,000.

Luke Lea, jr., convicted along with his father in the trial which has been under way here for more than four weeks, was fined $25,000 after Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles had made a plea for him on the grounds of his age, 23, and the fact that he was merely doing as instructed by his father.

Wallace B. Davis, president of the bank, who already faces a five to seven year sentence in connecton with its failure, was given four to six years in prison.

E. P. Charlet, business associate of the Leas, was acquitted by the jury and discharged by the court.

Judge M. V. Barnhill passed sentence late today after overruling defense motions for a new trial. Notice of appeal was given in behalf of the defendants and they were given 90 days in which to perfect their appeals.

Col. Lea, one-time commander of an artillery regiment in the World War, appeared to lose some of his color when the jury, composed of Haywood County citizens, returned its verdict at 11:26 o'clock this morning. The jurors had received the case at 4:28 yesterday afternoon.

There was no demonstration in the courtroom. A crowd of spectators stood in complete silence as Judge Barnhill passed sentence. Mrs. Lea, who had been at her husband's side during the trial, showed the effects of strain both when the verdict was ready and when the sentence was announced.

The defendants were tried on six counts of conspiracy to defraud the

The dead, all residents of Blanchester, are: Harry Leakey, 35; Mrs. Harry Leakey, 32; a young son of the Leakeys; Mrs. Tom White, 55, and Leta White, 14, daughter of Mrs. White.

Child Is Seriously Hurt By Hit-and-Run Driver

Mary K. Utterback, 7 years old, of 3414 Reservoir road, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when she was struck by a hit-and-run driver in front of her home.

A. R. Rollinson, of 1655 Thirty-fourth street northwest, arrived on the scene just in time to see a small Ford delivery truck speeding up the street. He took the child to Georgetown Hospital, where she was said to have a possible fractured skull and a fractured right leg. Hospital attendants said that her condition was critical at an early hour last night.

GIFFORD FUND DRIVE OCT. 19 UNTIL NOV. 25

Group Urges That All Local Relief Efforts Center in That Period.

(Associated Press.)

A Nation-wide drive for funds to prevent distress among the unemployed is to be conducted from October 19 to November 25.

This period was selected yesterday by President Hoover's relief organization following a conference between Walter S. Gifford, national director, and representatives of public and private welfare organizations.

The relief organization recommended that as far as practicable campaigns for relief funds and welfare campaigns which include relief funds be conducted during that time.

The period was agreed upon because of majority of drives for funds in past years have been conducted about that time. The annual roll call of the American Red Cross will be held from November 11 to November 25, thus falling within the specified period.

No specified amount has been determined upon as the objective of the national campaign, but a survey is now being made as a basis for fixing such a figure.

The President's emergency committee for unemployment, headed by Fred C. Croxton, received reports yesterday indicating a number of localities are already planning their drives for relief funds.

In Utah, the governor's State employment advisory council has formed a permanent organization to launch a State-wide movement for unemployment relief. In San Francisco the board of supervisors is con-

HOOVER ALOOF OVER SHIPPING DEAL 'BLUNDER'

Adopts Hands-Off Policy on Farm Board's Brazilian Action.

WOOD AND DILL JOIN IN ATTACK ON BODY

Ignoring of U. S. Merchant Marine Termed Deplorable and Inexcusable.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

President Hoover will take no part in the controversy kicked up by the Federal Farm Board's "$2,000,000 blunder," it was stated at the White House yesterday. His is to be a hands-off policy.

However, two members of Congress laid their hands on the Farm Board in a rather heavy fashion. One was an influential Republican and the other a Democrat.

Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana, chairman of the House appropriations committee, declared that the Farm Board's failure to look out for the American merchant marine in its big wheat-and-coffee deal with Brazil was the "biggest piece of bonehead business that has happened around here in a long time."

Declared Inexcusable.

Senator Clarence Dill (Democrat), Washington, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, described the Farm Board's failure as "deplorable" and "inexcusable."

When it was discovered that the Farm Board, in bartering 25,000,000 bushels of surplus American wheat for 1,050,000 bags of Brazilian coffee, had agreed to allow Brazil to handle the transportation of the rich cargo, American steamship owners appealed to President Hoover to intercede and to try and get them at least part of the business.

The American shippers contend that Brazil itself does not have enough ships to handle the huge supplies of wheat and coffee, and they fear that the South American republic will hire some British or other foreign shipping firm to help in the task.

President Hoover, it was said at the White House, feels that the question is solely one for the Federal Farm Board to handle, inasmuch as the Farm Board makes its own arrangements with regard to shipping.

Convinced of Intent.

The President was represented as feeling that since Brazil had agreed to pay all the freight rates, the Farm Board could not very well insist that American ships be used.

The President is convinced, it was said, that the Federal Farm Board is trying to do what it can to aid American steamship companies.

Representative Wood, in assailing the Farm Board's action as a "piece

The vacancy created by Representative Cooper's death may be filled at a special election, provided one is called by Gov. La Follette. The governor, however, has not indicated whether a special election will be held.

BRITAIN TOLD DOLE'S SLASH IS NECESSARY

British Chief Makes Radio Plea for Help

London, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, addressing the British public tonight over a nation-wide radio broadcast, appealed for the cooperation of all in balancing next year's budget, a task, he said, which would involve mutual sacrifices.

The prime minister of the new national government emphasized that he had put the national well-being ahead of personal convictions in taking the leadership of the new ministry.

"I have changed none of my beliefs and none of my ideals," he said. "It is time that I have no Labor credentials for what I am doing, although I am certain that in the interests of the working classes I ought to have them.

"I have the credentials of even higher authority. My credentials are those of national duty as I conceive it.

"I have given my life to the build-

SNOWDEN EXPECTS CRISIS SACRIFICES

Chancellor States Problem, Voicing Faith in People; Keeps Finance Post.

(World copyright, 1931, by United Press. Reproduction in part or whole forbidden.)

London, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Faith that the people of Great Britain will make whatever sacrifices may be necessary to meet "the present crisis" was expressed in an interview with the United Press tonight by Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, and one of the dominant figures in the new British government.

The slender, white-haired Snowden, who overcame a handicap of illness and poverty to win a high place among Britain's political leaders, outlined a clear picture of the national financial situation that caused the Labor government of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald to fall. Weighing his words carefully, he told of the situation's possible complications and its effect upon every family in the country.

The new "cooperation" government, he said, was formed solely to take such steps as would restore world confidence in Britain. He promised that the sacrifices which this government proposed to impose upon the people would be "equitable as between all sections of the community."

Snowden said Britain has all that is necessary to overcome the crisis and restore confidence.

"Britain has come through successfully in more serious crises even than this one," he said, "and I am sure the people, when they know what is required of them, will willingly respond."

Snowden served as chancellor in two Labor cabinets, winning the admiration even of his political foes, before joining MacDonald in the present national government in the face of bitter attacks by Labor party rebels.

But defiance of his foes, or even his associates, was nothing new for the flint-like little politico-financier, whose reputation for courage and iron-handed tactics extends far be-

5 Former Bond Company Officials Indicted in Fraud

American Mortgage Heads, Who Financed Mayflower Hotel in Washington, Accused of Mail Deceit in Selling $58,625,000 of Securities.

New York, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Five former officers of the American Bond and Mortgage Co. today were charged with use of the mails to defraud in an indictment on sixteen counts returned against them after four months' investigation.

Those indicted are William J. Moore, of Chicago, president and managing officer; his sons, Harold A., vice president, and Kenneth, sales manager; his stepson, Charles C. Moore, of New Rochelle, N. Y., vice president in charge of the New York office, and Hayden W. Ward, of New York, Eastern sales manager. William Moore, in a statement, said the charges were without foundation.

The indictment charges the defendants, through the company, which was organized in 1904 under the laws of Maine, with selling securities through offices in Chicago, Boston, New York, and other cities, to the public by fraudulent representation.

The securities thus sold are represented in the indictment to include bonds on 34 buildings and preferred stock and debendtures in the company, in sums in excess of $56,000,000.

Buildings specifically mentioned in the indictments are located in seven cities—Chicago, Detroit, New York, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Palm Beach, Fla., and Mamaroneck, N. Y.

The Chicago buildings are the Albion Shore Hotel, Churchill, 20 East Cedar street apartment, engineering building, Garden Court Apartments, Graemere Hotel, Harbor View Apartments, Jackson Towers, Lincoln-Robey Building, Martinique, Ontario Mercantile Building, Sherwin and Sunny Court Apartments. The total issue of bonds thereon is listed as $13,085,000.

The Detroit buildings are the Barton Apartments, Cadilaqua Apartments, Carlton-Plaza, Miles Building, New Whittier, Orville Court Apartments and Pingree Park Apartments, the bond issue for which totaled $5,205,000.

Bonds in nine New York City buildings totaled $22,285,000, while in St. Louis, Mo., bonds on the Roosevelt Building amounted to $575,000. The indictment mentions two Philadelphia buildings, with bonds in the sum of $2,275,000. The Whitehall Building in Palm Beach at $3,000,000, and the Carolyn Park Apartments in Mamaroneck, at $300,000.

The indictment also mentions

MacDonald Says Cut of 10 Per Cent Would Be Justified.

CABINET'S NUMBER REDUCED TO ELEVEN

All Except One So-Called "Spending Department" Are Excluded.

London, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Great Britain's new "government of Individuals" took over power tonight and plunged into the task of pulling the nation through its financial crisis.

The new cabinet, composed of only eleven members, was presented by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to King George this afternoon and received the approval of the throne. Tomorrow the members of Mr. MacDonald's old Labor government will hand in their seals of office and the new national government, headed by Mr. MacDonald and participated in by Laborites, Liberals and Conservatives, will hold its first meeting.

After he had been present at the death of his second Labor ministry, Mr. MacDonald, speaking from his official residence at 10 Downing street, tonight told the nation over the radio why it was impossible for him any longer to carry on with the Labor ministers who have been his colleagues for two years.

Stressing the necessity for maintaining the credit of Great Britain, the prime minister declared that the nation's financial situation was "like an attack of appendicitis, and can not be trifled with, but must have immediate treatment."

He told his audience that as a part of this national saving it was proposed to reduce the unemployment benefits 10 per cent, saying that as the result of lower living costs the reduction really "leaves the recipients better off than they were in 1929."

Taxation and Savings.

The prime minister said he did not want to indulge in economies, but in the circumstances the only program that would prove satisfactory was increased taxation on one hand and increased savings on the other.

He emphasized that his new government is not a coalition, but is "a government of individuals."

Provisional plans were made, it was understood, for the King to leave London tomorrow night to return to Balmoral, Scotland, to resume the holiday that was interrupted in dramatic fashion Saturday by the cabinet crisis. Should any difficulty arise making it necessary that he remain in London his plans will be canceled.

The new administration, expected to lead the nation out of economic and financial doldrums, is noteworthy in that all except one of the so-called "spending departments" have been excluded from the cabinet.

Among those thus passed over are labor, education, air, war and navy.

Approved by King.

The cabinet personnel, which Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald presented to King George this afternoon and which has been approved by the throne, follows:

Mr. MacDonald (Labor), prime minister and first lord of the treasury.

Stanley Baldwin (Conservative), president of the council.

Philip Snowden (Labor), chancellor of the exchequer.

Sir Herbert Samuel (Liberal), home secretary.

Lord Sankey (Labor), lord chancellor.

Lord Reading (Liberal), foreign secretary.

Sir Samuel Hoare (Conservative), secretary for India.

J. H. Thomas (Labor), secretary for dominions and colonies.

Neville Chamberlain (Conservative), minister of health.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister (Conservative), president of the board of trade.

Sir John Gilmour (Conservative), minister of agriculture.

Other Appointments.

The following appointments outside the cabinet also were announced:

Lord Amulree (Labor), air secretary.

Sir Austen Chamberlain (Conservative), first lord of the admiralty.

Sir Achibald Sinclair (Conservative), secretary for Scotland.

Sir Donald McLean (Liberal), president of the board of education.

Sir Henry Betterton (Conservative), minister of labor.

JURY FAILS TO SOLVE DEATH OF MRS. PRICE

Caused in Manner Unknown, Verdict; Naval Officer Sure Wife Was Not Drunk.

San Francisco, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—A coroner's jury, after an hour's deliberation, today returned a verdict declaring Mrs. Daisy Price, 26, seven-week bride of Lieut. Comdr. George D. Price, met her death as the result of a crushed pelvis "in a manner unknown to this jury."

The verdict climaxed a day's testimony relating to Mrs. Price's companions and movements for several hours previous to her death, although the question of just how Mrs. Price fell, or was thrown, from her fourth-floor hotel window, was not answered.

Price, who declared before Coroner T. B. W. Leland that he was sure Mrs. Price had not committed suicide, and was equally sure she had not fallen while intoxicated, declared it was his belief she "would have thrown herself out the window to escape an assault on her person," although he refused to say whether he believed such an assault had been attempted.

Naval Probe Today.

Judge-Advocate L. H. C. Johnson, of the airplane carrier U. S. S. Lexington, declared following the inquest a naval board of inquiry would be held aboard the Lexington tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Inspector Allen McGinn, head of the police homicide detail, said no further investigation would be made unless new evidence was uncovered. McGinn also said he was confident Mrs. Price had not committed suicide.

Witnesses who testified at the inquest detailed events that preceded and surrounded the fatal fall of Mrs. Price from a window of the Alexander Hamilton Hotel last Sunday morning.

Leaves with Body.

The narratives included hints at possible friction between Mrs. Price and the wife of another lieutenant commander in the Navy, Mrs. E. W. Spencer, who, with her husband and others, attennded a drinking party in Mrs. Price's room.

Commander Price started tonight for Charleston, W. Va., with his wife's body. Mrs. Price's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beury, live in Charleston.

After resigning as prime minister of Great Britain because of a split in the Labor party over methods of avoiding a threatened budget deficit, J. Ramsay MacDonald (right above) accepted King George's mandate to head a new national government in which all three of the major parties agreed to participate. Stanley Baldwin (upper left), Conservative leader, and Sir Herbert Samuel (left below), Liberal spokesman, are president of the council and home secretary, respectively. J. H. Thomas (center above), secretary of the dominions, said he also would take part in the new cabinet, while Philip Snowden (right below), chancellor of the exchequer, retains that post.

WOMEN TODAY MARK SUFFRAGE BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Wiley Announces 20 Triumphs Gained by Her Sex in 11 Years.

(Associated Press.)

Today's eleventh anniversary of woman's suffrage was hailed by the National Woman's Party as occasion for rejoicing over "inequalities erased." Mrs. Harvey Wiley, national chairman, outlined twenty types of feminine legal triumphs during the last eleven years in the various States. She rejoiced at added parity of citizenship, but expressed resentment at "efforts to force women out of industry and back into the home."

Women's gains she classified as: Obtaining a greater share of authority over their children; equalizing property and inheritance rights; securing industrial equality, and having citizenship guaranteed.

In seventeen States, she said, women have more adequate guardianship over their children than they had eleven years ago. She cited New Jersey as having equalized responsibility for illegitimate children; California, Delaware, Florida, Louisiana and Maryland for equalizing property rights, and Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, New York, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia for equalizing inheritance rights.

New York got an honorable mention for equalizing conditions of making a will and for opening night work to woman pharmacists; Ohio for equalizing age of majority; Maryland for equalizing pay in public service; Porto Rico for giving women the vote; Wisconsin for equalizing all legal rights except in industry; Pennsylvania for making conditions for settlement for poor relief the same for women as for men; New Jersey for equalizing right to earnings.

Mr. Wiley named Maine, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia as having given women equal rights to choose domicile for voting; Delaware, Louisiana and Maryland as having given them equal right to public office.

Grounds for divorce and annulment were said to have been equalized in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Maryland, New York and New Jersey were mentioned as having equalized pay and other conditions in teaching.

FORMER PRESIDENT FACES CHILE ACTION

Deputies Decide to Demand Ibanez's Appearance to Answer Charges.

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The Chamber of Deputies decided today to demand the appearance of former President Carlos Ibanez at next Monday's session to answer whatever charges may be placed against him.

Former President Ibanez has been in Buenos Aires since he was ousted recently. Two weeks ago a former Chilean army officer was arrested on the frontier, and was charged by the government with attempting to deliver revolutionary documents to Ibanez, who denied participating in any such activities.

The demand will be sent to Foreign Minister Balmaceda, who will notify the ambassador at Buenos Aires to tell Ibanez, asking him to appear or send a note defending himself.

Students held a demonstration in front of the congress hall tonight demanding the deputies and senators resign immediately "in the interests of national peace."

A crowd invaded the chamber howling demands from the galleries that the deputies resign. One man ventured on the floor to dare the deputies themselves and a considerable disturbance followed.

One person was injured when police reserves rushed into the building and cleared the hall.

Protest of Honduras Is Sent to Guatemala

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The Honduran government sent a protest to Guatemala today against violation of Honduran territory by Guatemalan military authorities.

The protest said a Guatemalan military commander, Manuel Colindres, occupied the Honduran town of El Remolino and expelled all Honduran residents. Honduras also protested against Guatemala occupying the town of Tehuana. It demanded the immediate evacuation of both Tehuana and El Remolino and the destruction of government buildings erected there by the Guatemalan authorities.

GRAND JURY QUIZ IS ORDERED ON CHARGES OF THIRD DEGREE

voted to the matter in the Wickersham report, Mr. Collins said he will ask the jury to conduct an entirely independent investigation, covering not only the Harker charges, but the other allegations.

Inspector W. C. Shelby said the police investigation of the third degree beating will proceed independently of the grand jury action, and will be disposed of via the trial board route, as fast as investigations are made in each case. He said the police department personnel is anxious that a board of civilians be appointed to try the four men suspended, so that no charge of prejudice can possibly follow. Under normal procedure, three police precinct captains comprise the trial board.

Decision Likely Soon.

Dr. Reichelderfer last night said he had reached no decision upon this proposal, but that it is receiving serious consideration. It would be up to the board if created, he said, to set the trial date.

His letter to District Attorney Leo A. Rover follows:

"The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are intensely interested in having a thorough, unbiased and independent investigation of the statements made by one James Henry Harker, who alleges that he was severely beaten by several members of the Metropolitan Police Force of the District of Columbia on August 21, 1931, for the alleged reason, among others, of compelling his admission of guilt on a charge of involving the commission of a felony. They believe that the grand jury now constituted, having the power to compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses, is eminently qualified to make this investigation and reach a determination in the matter. The Commissioners sincerely hope that you will present their wishes to the grand jury at the fist available moment.

Wants Thorough Investigation.

"Various statements have also been made as to the existence of a practice of administering rough treatment and third-degree methods to other persons than Harker, and the Commissioners earnestly desire that such statements be likewise investigated to the end that if such pactices exist in fact they may be dealt with fully and completely, and if the allegation are justified, those responsible may be severely punished and the practice completely eradicated from the department.

"It is hoped that you will appreciate both the gravity of the charges and the intensity of the desire of the Commissiones that these charges may be sifted to the bottom. You may assure the grand jury of the fullest cooperation of the District of Columbia government."

Acting District Attorney Collins replied as follows:

"In the absence of Mr. Rover, United States attorney, I acknowledge receipt of your letter of this date calling attention to suggestions now being made from several sources as to alleged third degree methods being employed by the Metropolitan Police Department in connection with their investigation of crime.

Cooperation Is Pledged.

"You may rest assured that this office will cooperate in every way to the end that a thorough investigation of this subject may be had and I shall personally call your letter to the attention of the grand jury tomorrow morning immediately upon its convening.

"For your information, I shall ask the grand jury to start its inquiry on Tuesday next, September 1, and if you have any complaints other than the ones now being discussed in the public press, I would appreciate it if you would submit same to this office."

Inspector Stoll's report recommending the four suspensions was among yesterday's surprise developments. As it was the police official's regular "day off" it was thought that his findings in the case would not be reported until today at the earliest.

No Doubt of Beating.

"There is no doubt but what Harker was beaten either just before his arrest or while in custody," he told Maj. Pratt. "He claims the officers beat him to induce him to make a confession, yet he still admits having had this money, giving it away, spending it like the proverbial drunken sailor. He also admits telling Louis Bacas in the presence of Capt. Holmes, about 3 p. m., Saturday, August 22, that he had broken into this place and stolen the money and did not say anything at that time or at any other time, of having been beaten up, to any member of this department."

It was to this last statement, and to Inspector Stoll's assertion that he believed "Harker did break into 727 North Capitol street and get this money" that Attorney Hawken offered vigorous objection last night.

"It is apparent that Inspector Stoll, in behalf of the police, is trying to prejudice the public mind against my client," he said. "My client accounted to Inspector Stoll for the $76 in his possession, with which he bought the clothing and other articles.

Believes Man Innocent.

"In fairness to my client, Inspector Stoll should have informed the public of this fact.

"I have investigated this case thoroughly, and I am firmly of the opinion that Harker is absolutely innocent."

"Furthermore," Mr. Hawken added, "never until today has there been any hint or suggestion that this boy ever made any confession in the presence of Capt. Holmes, and it is rather a late hour for such a statement to be made."

The attorney charged the police inspector based his assertion that Harker spent his money "like the proverbial drunken sailor" on his client's purchase of a suit of clothes and the gift of $1 he gave a girl.

Recommends Suspension.

Inspector Stoll said in his report that even if Harker had stolen the money, "the officers had no right legally or morally to abuse or beat the prisoner to get an admission of guilt."

"If it is proven," he added, "that Harker was beaten up by any one, in order to get a confession, he will doubtless be acquitted regardless of how guilty he may be, and in that case the general public will be the sufferer."

He said he recommended the suspension of all four policemen, "as Mostyn was picked out as the man who did the beating—the others were in the room at the time, and if this man were beaten up by a member of this department in their presence, I consider them equally guilty."

Detective Mostyn last night said: "My conscience doesn't worry me a bit. This man is trying to beat the rap by throwing a smoke screen around us. He knows he was never touched. I want this trial to come as soon as possible and I am not afraid of the outcome."

City Should Face Liability For Police Acts, Is Claim

Washington, as a city, should be made responsible for the acts of its policemen, Nathan B. Williams, local attorney, said last night in a letter to Dr. Luther C. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners.

Commenting on charges that First Precinct police beat a prisoner unmercifully, in efforts to secure a confession, Mr. Williams declared that "such a circumstance disturbs both public personnel and seriously interferes with the development of public attitude toward the Police Department and the administration of the public affairs of the city."

"If the alleged occurrence be true," his letter continued, "each guilty party is liable to an action of damages for assault, but then we hear the public snort: 'What is a judgment worth?'

"The city under the law is not liable for the torts of its employes committed against the citizen.

"I am convinced that in the best interests of the community, the time has come when this rule should be discarded and city, State and Nation assume liability for the unlawful or tortious acts of its employes."

M'DONALD PLEADS FOR AID OF BRITONS

ing up of a political party. I was present at its birth. I was its nurse when it emerged from its infancy and had attained to adult years.

"There has been a good deal of propaganda which has had an evil effect abroad, even more than at home. People expressing party views ought to be very careful that they are not damaging national interests.

"It is essential that the confidence of the world in our credit should be restored, otherwise we shall not be able to maintain the value of the pound sterling. If there was collapse in the pound sterling we should be defaulting on the rest of the world and our credit would be gone.

"The budget must be balanced and assurance must be given at once. We must all make sacrifices, but I am certain that there is no person in the community who will not give his response, provided he knows another person is doing the same.

"Apparently the matter which troubles most of the people with whom I have been associated and whose interest is dear to me, and whose whole confidence is equally dear, is the proposal to cut unemployment benefits. May I make an observation or two in order that the mass of our people may consider it with some sense of proportion and equity in their minds?

"Unemployment benefit is not a living wage. It was never meant to be that, but I, like every one of my colleagues, have been willing rather to stretch than to curtail those benefits. The proposal now is that as a part of this urgently required national saving these benefits should be reduced by 10 per cent, but that children's allowances should not be touched at all. That looks pretty big.

"But will those who are listening to me remember this: That during the last two years the cost of living has reduced by 11½ per cent, so that if the unemployment benefits had been subject to this consideration—a consideration to which hundreds of thousands of workers are subjected—a consideration which not a few trade unions have deliberately arranged in the interests of their own people—had that been so, the unemployment benefit, automatically and without changing a hair's breadth of its value in maintaining the standards of life, could already have been reduced, without even a clamor or a fight, by 11½ per cent. The proposal to reduce these benefits, therefore, leaves the recipients 1½ per cent better off than they were in 1929.

"One thing, and only one, will put British credit in a position of security at this moment, and that is a scheme consisting in economies on the one side, and further revenue on the other. The scheme is well balanced, with the burden imposed as lightly as possible, but imposed equitably. That scheme will be produced. In order to do it a government has to be formed.

"It is not a coalition government. I will take no part in that. It is not a government which compels any party to change its principles, or to subordinate its individuality. I should take no part in that, either. It is a government, as has been described, of individuals.

"It has been formed to do this work. If the work takes little time, the life of the government will be short. When that life is finished, the work of the House of Commons and the general political situation will return to where they were last week, and those who have taken risks will either receive punishment or reward. The election which will follow will not be fought by the government."

NEW CABINET TAKES CONTROL IN BRITAIN

Regime Plunges Into Study of Plans for Lifting Fiscal Burdens.

Lord Londonderry (Conservative), first commissioner of works.

Lord Lothian (Liberal), chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Membership Divided.

Membership in the cabinet is divided approximately according to the strength of the parties. Thus Labor has four, the Conservatives five and the Liberals two.

The new ship of state will be formally launched tomorrow, when the retiring Labor government members will hand their seals of office to King George and their successors will be sworn in and will receive the seals.

The first meeting of the National government cabinet is scheduled for noon tomorrow, but may not take place until afternoon.

That economy will be the watchword of the three-party government was indicated by the fact that the only big spending department included in the cabinet is the ministry of health, the head of which, Neville Chamberlain, is looked upon as a man immune to proposals for lavish expenditures.

It has become quickly apparent that the cutting down of the cabinet from the normal 20 to 11—there were 21 in the Labor administration—will not sit well with the departments which have been left in the "appointment" class.

An undersecretary in Downing street got off this paraphase of Browning's "The Lost Leader" in reference to Mr. MacDonald:

"Just for a handful of panic he left us,
Just for a banknote to stick in his hat."

Although the new ministers have not yet received their official seals and gone through the other formalities, already they are preparing plans for the most drastic budget operation in the history of the country. They will work night and day until their complete program can be submitted to the special session of Parliament, which is expected September 8.

Considerable excitement was caused today by the publication in the Daily Herald of a statement that certain American bankers had stipulated reduction in the dole as a condition to granting further extension of present credits to the Bank of England.

This was officially denied, although it was learned that some communications from United States bankers had been received.

Retirement Predicted.

A high authority stated Mr. MacDonald realized that by heading a government wholly opposed by labor he was finishing his political career. At the conclusion of the present crisis he will retire from political life, this informant said. Mr. Snowden, it is understood, feels the same way.

While Mr. MacDonald was preparing to submit the cabinet to the King, the Independent Labor Party issued a statement officially declaring its opposition to the new government's policies and urging the Trades Union Congress and the Labor Party to organize immediately for intensive resistance.

That battle with the Trades Unions and other labor organizations is imminent is generally acknowledged. A special meeting of the Parliamentary Labor Party was summoned for Friday at which it is expected disapproval of the national government will be voted.

In that event, Mr. MacDonald would be expected to resign as party leader.

Frost Startles Wisconsin Town.

Ashland, Wis., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Winter is just around the corner, residents of Ashland decided when they awoke today to find the ground white with frost. Thin crusts of ice formed in small pools. Garden crops wilted in the cold. Old settlers said it was the first time in their memory that frost had appeared so early in August.

J. Bull, in a Hole on Dole, Signs 'Dolefully Yours'

By JOHN J. DALY

ASIDE from free trade—or no trade at all—revival of the old-time dole seems to have put Great Britain in the hole.

In St. Alban's Abbey, England, there is a mute reminder of the past—a seventeenth century cupboard used for the dole-bread, when the very charities doled out by convents and monasteries increased the appetites they hoped to relieve.

Old human nature, every time, will hang a dole-stone around its benefactor's neck, given the opportunity.

Anyway, the dole is now the chief concern of John Bull—the dole and the deficit.

"Hands off the dole," warns the powerful Trades Union Congress.

"Taxation is not the remedy, cut the expenditures," say the Conservatives.

Whatever is done, the dole must be considered. Whereas England in 1930 had 1,135,004 unemployed, there are now close to 3,000,000 men walking the streets, watching and waiting for the dole.

With low voice, and doleful look, the great masses of a great nation stand idly by while their statesmen attempt to balance the budget and put vitality into the enfeebled pound sterling.

* * * *

HAD Poe heard the doling of the dole, instead of the tolling of the bells, he might have written a different dirge:

I

When the idle cried for dole,
British dole!
All the world knew what it meant—
Great Britain in the hole.
Still, they'd dicker, dicker, dicker,
Put their country in a plight;
While the statesmen, growing slicker,
Heard their callings all the quicker
With political delight;
Hearing, "Dole, dole, dole!"
In a sort of rhythmic roll
To the constant tabulation that so covetously stole
By the dole, dole, dole, dole
Dole, dole, dole—
Sure disaster, coming faster, from the dole!

II

O, the doling of the dole—
Bitter dole!
What a world of sorry mess England mixes in a bowl!
Through the streets of London town
See the dole-bags passing round,
Filled with little sterling notes,
All too few;
While the British navy floats,
And the admirals, resplendent, in their coats, Laugh a-new.
O, there'd never be a dole,
Were it not for British battleships that roll,
Taking toll
From the soul
Of the nation, like a ghoul,
Like a weevil in a boll,
Causing taxes, grinding axes,
For the dole, dole, dole, dole,
Dole, dole, dole,
For the grasping and the rasping of the dole.

WELL, perhaps it is not that bad; but undoubtedly Ramsay MacDonald, mighty man of the hour, would never have had to dissolve his Labor cabinet were it not for the dole, and were it not for the dole the strength of the Bank of England would not now be sapped to such a point that outside interests must lay down the principles of sound finance and the lord of the manor would not now be signing himself,

Dolefully yours,

J. BULL.

Moscow Urges British Reds Take Leadership

Moscow, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—The cabinet change in Britain was interpreted by Soviet newspapers today as proof that English capitalism is in "desperate straits" and that Laborites are attempting to save the capitalistic State.

MacDonald's leadership of the National Government "unmasked the reformists," the newspapers said, urging British Communists to assume leadership of the "disillusioned workers."

Huge Cross of Christ Dedicated.

Susa, Franco-Italian Frontier (U. P.).—A Cross of Christ, nearly 30 feet high, has been erected on Mont Moncenisio, near here. One arm of the cross stretches toward Italy and the other toward France. The cross flies the Italian, French and Papal flags. The monument recently was dedicated by church and civil authorities.

SACRIFICES IN CRISIS EXPECTED IN BRITAIN

yond the British Isles. At The Hague conference on the Young reparations plan it was Snowden who fought France and others with a determination that would not be denied in defense of what he believed to be the rights of Great Britain. As in many of his battles in Parliament and elsewhere, the crippled chancellor won.

In his present post, the most difficult and responsible job in a financial emergency, he has again entered the battle ranks, perhaps in the most daring fight of his career, to balance the British budget in the face of opposition by a large part of his own party.

Pound Value Threatened.

Snowden described the present crisis in brief, crisp terms, explaining that weakening of the pound sterling (as has been threatened) would mean a drop in the value of wages and all other payments such as pensions, rents and investments, for every person in Britain.

"The position of this country is especially dependent on maintenance of confidence in international credit and the international exchanges," Snowden said. "The recent weakening of confidence in the pound sterling, the withdrawal by foreign countries of their credits (loans) in London and the great loss of gold, if continued, would quickly reduce the currency. (The Bank of England recently suffered from heavy withdrawal of gold reserves to France and other countries).

"The falling value of the currency naturally reduces its purchasing power. It is at this point that such lack of confidence affects everybody. If the value of the pound sterling fell, it would mean a reduction in the value of wages and of all other payments.

All Classes Affected.

"Every class and community would be affected in that way. When currency is not stable the manufacturers and traders hesitate to enter new commitments.

"The danger of all this happening has been very real in the last few weeks.

"The government has been impressed by the gravity of this menace, with all of its appalling consequences to industry and the standard of living of the people. The government also has been taking measures to avert such a catastrophe.

"These are the facts, and it is quite beside the point to say that the situation has been deliberately created by financial interests for political purposes. (Certain Labor party elements have charged that bankers were responsible for creating the crisis as a means of forcing reduction in the dole.)

Organized Drive Held Delusion.

"We may think that the idea of international finance, deliberately conducted without any regard for the interests of trade, is an ignorant delusion."

Snowden followed the example of Prime Minister MacDonald in appealing to the nation for support and confidence in the government. He also emphasized for the benefit of foreign investors that the British financial situation is fundamentally sound and needs only restoration of confidence to prevent heavy withdrawals of credit and gold.

"We have vast resources," he said, "and all that is needed to restore confidence abroad is evidence that we are placing our national finances on a thoroughly sound basis."

Mellon, Back at Office, Attends Cabinet Parley

(Associated Press.)

After a vacation trip that involved more work than rest, Secretary Mellon returned to the Treasury yesterday and plunged into the problems that accumulated in his absence.

He reached his office shortly after 9 o'clock, summoned Undersecretary Mills, attended the regular meeting of the Cabinet and then continued his conference with the Undersecretary. He maintained his usual silence throughout the day, declining to comment on conditions at home or on the European situation in which he played a prominent part.

Larrea Alba Attempts To Form New Cabinet

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Col. Luis Larrea Alba was attempting to form a cabinet tonight for his provisional government established yesterday when President Isidro Ayora resigned and designated him as his successor. Ayora and his family were refuged at the United States Legation.

There were demonstrations today in favor of the new government, but some critics maintained it would be merely a continuation of the Ayora regime. Larrea Alba informed congress that an economic reorganization of the country, badly hit by the depression, would be undertaken immediately.

Paraguay Will Consider Pact of Nonaggression

(Associated Press.)

Paraguay has informed the United States and the other four neutrals interceding in the Chaco boundary dispute that she will consider the recent proposal that Bolivia and Paraguay enter a nonaggression pact pending settlement of the controversy.

The suggestion for a nonaggression agreement was made by Bolivia in reply to the neutrals' note of June 25 which sought to reopen negotiations. The Paraguayan note was noncommittal, but indicated the suggestion would be considered.

Danes Ask Cuba for Bomb Damages.

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—The government today asked the war department for detailed information of the fighting at Gibara last week, especially in connection with bombs alleged to have been hurled at the Danish ship Frederick Horn. The Danish government's request for damages was received today.

Mexican Government Sells Food.

in a position to supply names of three additional third-degree "victims."

The name of another, Henry Johnson, who Mr. Hawken alleges was beaten at the same precinct station by the same policemen, August 3, was turned over to police yesterday by the attorney. Inspector Louis J. Stoll began an inquiry into the charges at once.

Martz last night declared that when he was arrested on charges of shooting to death Irvin Zirkle in a Ninth street poolroom several months ago, two First Precinct detectives whom he named, beat him intermittently throughout one whole night, holding him by the hair and hitting him in an effort to make him say the Zirkle shooting was not accidental.

Sampson charged that he and the two other men whom he named were beaten several times each day over a period of three days they passed at the First Precinct, where they were held on larceny charges. He said that two precinct detectives and one uniformed officer beat him with their fists and threatened him with a broom handle, clubs and a sawed-off pool cue. He said they used clubs on the other two men. The three were accused of attempting to break into a jewelry store near Fifteenth and F streets northwest. Sampson is now serving a six-months vagrancy sentence, but faces a charge of housebreaking when he is released this fall. He said the housebreaking charge was placed against him when he testified in court that he had been beaten by the detectives.

LINDBERGHS REACH TOKYO FLYING FIELD

barricades in their anxiety to welcome the couple.

Rear Admiral Kobayashi, commandant of the station, received the visitors.

He then presented Kiyokazu Ado, minister of the navy; Genjiro Minami, minister of war; Baron Kijiro, foreign minister, and other members of the official welcoming party.

Immediately the Lindberghs were escorted from the shores of the lake on which the airport stands to the Officers Club. There they were taken to a room once occupied by the emperor, and refreshments, consisting of hot chocolate, iced tea and sandwiches, were served. The guests were given an opportunity to change clothing.

Start for Tokyo.

As soon as the change had been made Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh went to the reception hall where the minister of the navy officially greeted them. With the American Ambassador, W. Cameron Forbes, and others of the reception party, they then enjoyed a buffet luncheon before departing for the City of Tokyo by train.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh covered the 7,000 miles from New York to Tokio in 29 days. On July 29 they took off from New York. The next day they flew to the home of Mrs. Lindbergh's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Morrow, at North Haven, Me., where they said good-by to their infant son.

The next day's flight took them into Canada, ending at Ottawa, Ont., July 30. From Ottawa they entered the "wilds," landing at Moose Factory August 1 and the following day flew on to Churchill, Man.

Flew Over Barren Lands.

Baker Lake was the next stop and then they flew over miles of barren and isolated land to come down at Aklavik, far north of the mouth of the McKenzie River.

At Aklavik they faced one of the most perilous flights of the journey, to Point Barrow, Alaska, northernmost settlement on the continent, where Eskimos predominated in the reception.

Monday night, August 10, they left Point Barrow on the flight that was to bring them their first misadventure. Over Kotzebue Sound they were forced down by fog, but resumed their flight and landed at Nome Tuesday.

Until Friday of that week they waited at the Alaska City and then departed for Karaginski, Siberia, approximately 1,067 miles across the Bering Sea.

The flight was made on schedule, almost to the minute and the next day they flew to Petropavlovsk, Siberia.

MORE GAINS SHOWN IN GASOLINE AND OIL

Middle-Western Price War Ends; Martial Law May Be Lifted Soon.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Further improvement in the oil industry was noted today as the Texas Railroad Commission busied itself in the task of formulating proration plans for the vast east Texas pool, discovery of which was instrumental in bringing chaos to the oil business.

Rising gasoline prices and announcement of further increases in crude oil values was the good news. The increase in gasoline, amounting to from 1½ cents to 3 cents a gallon, brought to an end a price war in nine Middle Western States. In some cities motorists had been paying record low prices.

The crude increase was in Oklahoma, the Sinclair Refining Co. meeting the 70 cents a barrel top announced for that State's oil by most companies last Saturday. The Phillips Petroleum Co. has made an offer of $1 a barrel.

Designated as the enforcement agency in regulating production in the east Texas field under a law passed by a recent session of the Legislature, the railroad commission called before it leaders of the petroleum business, many of whom hold large leases in east Texas, and sought information on which to base its proposed orders.

The first indication of what the probable daily production may be was seen in a recommendation made by E. V. Foran, technical adviser for a body known as the "Central Proration Committee." He told the commission he believed the proudction should be held to between 225,000 and 250,000 barrels. This contrast with the peak of about 800,000 barrels reached before the field was shut down.

C. V. Terrell, chairman of the commission, said he expected new proration plans would become effective September 1. It was generally believed martial law, declared by Gov. Ross S. Sterling to prevent waste until the commission could make effective its regulations, would be lifted shortly thereafter.

Meanwhile, the martial law area, comprised of four counties, remained quiet, no further outbreaks of incendiarism being reported.

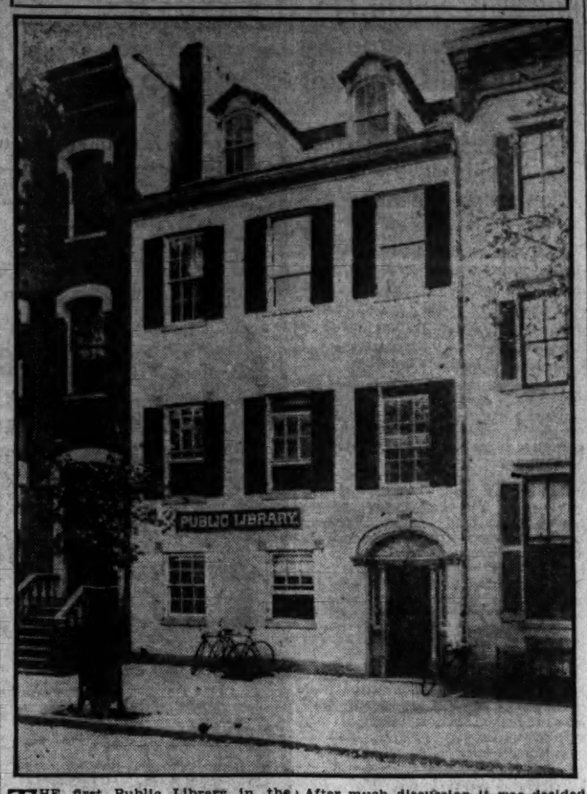
When Washington Was Younger—No. 25



THE first Public Library in the District of Columbia authorized by Congress is the building shown above. It was located at 1326 New York avenue northwest.

Gen. A. W. Greely, chief signal officer of the Army and a public-spirited citizen of the District, was among the first to realize the need of Washington for a free library. After discussing his plans with many representative citizens of the District he circulated a subscription for funds among several prominent Washingtonians on October 30, 1894. Among the subscribers to the fund were John Joy Edson and Alexander B. Hagner.

After the necessary amount was raised a meeting was convened and a board of directors was appointed, of which Gen. Greely was president. After much discussion it was decided to rent the McLean Building, at 1517 H street northwest, as the home for Washington's first library, which was to be known as the Washington City Free Library. The library was formally opened on January 3, 1896, with 3,100 books on its shelves.

In the meantime bills were up for consideration by the Congress for the establishment and maintenance of a public library, and on June 3, 1896, the bill became a law. Gen. Greely then placed all of the material and resources at the disposal of the Government. The building at 1326 New York avenue was selected as the site for the Public Library and on July 15, 1898, the Washington City Free Library merged into the first Public Library of Washington.

Hoover Cuts Duck Season To Month, Due to Drought

Action, Effective Throughout United States and Alaska, Taken to Prevent Extermination; Maryland Nimrods Begin Rush for Licenses.

(Associated Press.)

The hunting season on ducks, whose numbers have been seriously depleted by drought, was shortened to one month yesterday by a proclamation issued by President Hoover.

The proclamation also applies to geese, brants and coots throughout the United States and Alaska.

Canadian authorities are expected by a biological survey to take similar action soon. The principal breeding grounds in Northwestern United States and in Western and Southwestern Canada have been dried up by drought over the last three years.

In the northern part of the United States, except Alaska, the season, under the new regulations, will open October 1 and close October 31.

In the South the season opens November 16 and closes December 15, except in Florida, where it will begin November 20 and continue until December 19. The Alaskan season will be from September 1 to September 30.

The seasons on jacksnipe, sora, woodcock and doves have not been changed.

Under the old regulations the length of the seasons averaged about three months.

Drought conditions in the principal feeding grounds, the biblogical survey said yesterday, convinced Federal and Dominion conservation officials that "irreparable damage would result if measures were not adopted at once to reduce the kill and to preserve an adequate stock of birds for breeding."

Baltimore, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—With the first open season for hunting game birds in Maryland due September 1, hundreds have been applying for licenses with the clerks of the courts in the counties and the clerk of the Court of Common Pleas in Baltimore.

The acts of 1931 provide an open season on rail birds September 1-30, on doves the same dates, and also November 15 to December 15 inclusive. The open season for squirrel is September 15 to October 15, inclusive, and from November 15 to December 24, inclusive. In Allegany, Garrett and Cecil Counties, however, squirrels may be hunted only November 15 to December 24. There is no open season on any other species of game until November 1, when the wildfowl open season arrives.

TAMMANY DECLARES WAR ON ROOSEVELT

Message Ignores Demand for Up-State Quiz Made by Organization.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt ignored Tammany Hall in his message to the Legislature today, and that organization immediately declared war "to the last ditch" upon the executive's recommendations.

The governor turned down Tammany's demand for an investigation of up-State cities by entirely omitting entirely mention of it in opening the special session.

He asked only for legislation to strengthen the powers of the Hofstadter committee's investigation of New York City. "It must not be confused or entangled with other legislation," he said. "It is a question that must be decided upon its own merits without delay."

Message Denounced.

Senator John J. Dunnigan, Tammany's Senate whip, at once issued a statement denouncing the proposed legislation. He said:

"It is one of the most unfair, unjust, inhuman, despotic, high-handed and unpecessary bills ever sponsored by a major political party for purely political reasons. It is unsound in principle and encouraging to criminals.

"If this highbinding Republican bill becomes law it will place the Republican party in a position to hold star chamber proceedings in any manner it sees fit, not only to their greedy, personal benefit but to the detriment of the State as a governmental body and its citizens as well.

"This bill is an invitation to criminals to secure immunity in return for spreading slander against those opposed politically to the Republican party.

Early Passage Seen.

"The measure * * * is something no other legislative committee had or even asked for. * * * This bill grants to a political boss from a corrupt county, * * * dictatorial authority that will unquestionably react disastrously to the State of New York.

Despite this strenuous denunciation it was forecast that the two bills which would invest the Hofstadter committee with the intended authority would be passed promptly, and be out of the way by Thursday, expedited by special rules.

This is the celerity the governor desires, as he wishes then to take up his unemployment relief legislation in another special message.

The governor did not read his immunity message, nor would he comment upon the Tammany leader's statement.

Bull on Rampage Blocks Train and Gores Officer

Pittsburgh, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—A bull broke away from the Pennsylvania yards early today, charged into the train shed, delayed the crack Cincinnati Limited and tore up hundreds of lawns before it was killed by a police radio scout car.

A patrolman was gored when officers attempted to drive the animal from the tunnel which runs under the city to the Panhandle tracks. The limited was detained when the railroad officials warned passengers not to board or leave the train while redcaps, police and trainmen tried to drive the animal from the station.

the committee was asked by Bishop Cannon's counsel to receive a protest he had cabled from London against the inquiry. Chairman Nye said the committee would consider receiving the protest and then proceeded with the inquiry.

Later, in reply to the complaint of the bishop that the investigation was aimed at "criminal prosecution," Senator Nye said he regarded the "entire study of the committee as basic to the formation of vital legislation." He also recalled that the bishop had been told the committee would resume its hearings at this time. David Cannon, a son of the bishop, attended the hearing with counsel for the bishop.

Mr. Slemp said that Joseph R. Frelinghuysen, former Republican senator for New Jersey, directed him to Mr. Jameson as a man "interested in prohibition and in the election of a Republican President." He did not know whether Mr. Frelinghuysen also contriouted funds to the bishop. Late in the campaign, Mr. Slemp said, he obtained $30,000 from Mr. Jameson for the Virginia Republican committee—a District organization from the Virginia Anti-Smith committee headed by Bishop Cannon.

Recalls No "Pledge."

Chairman Nye and Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, who were the only committee members present, questioned Mr. Slemp closely about a statement in a letter from Bishop Cannon to Mr. Jameson that "Slemp has already paid three-quarters of his pledge." However, the witness said he had no recollection whatever of any "pledge" or contribution to Bishop Cannon. He said he contributed $5,000 to the late Joseph Brady, of Richmond, as district chairman of the Republican organization.

Mr. Slemp said he borrowed the $5,000 to give to Brady and added "I expected to get it back but so far I haven't succeeded."

He went on to say that he had consulted with Bishop Cannon at various times since the campaign and in one instance as to the manner of report he should make on his campaign funds. He said the bishop asked him in 1929, when the Senate campaign funds committee was looking into campaign expenditures, whether he should govern himself by the requirements only of the Federal corrupt practices act or by whatever the Senate committee asked. Mr. Slemp said he advised the bishop to give any information asked of him.

Ignorant of $5,300 Letter.

Confronted with a letter written by Bishop Cannon to a Mr. Sheffield on stationery of the Slemp law office and inclosing notice of a $5,300 deposit, Mr. Slemp said he had no knowledge of it whatever. He said so far as he knew Bishop Cannon had not used his law office.

When Chairman Nye asked Mr. Slemp whether he consulted with Bishop Cannon at the time the churchman defied the Senate lobby committee, the witness replied that he had, but protested that the Nye committee was "going far afield" in this line of inquiry. Senator Nye did not press the questioning in this direction.

The witnesses summoned for today are Perry Seay, vice president of the American Bank & Trust Co., Richmond, Va.; F. W. Sheffield, Cashier of the Bank of Crewe, Crewe, Va.; J. A. Booker, cashier of the Citizens Bank & Trust Co., Blackstone, Va.; Wade H. Cooper, president of the Commercial National Bank, Washington; C. B. Stevens, Charlottesville, Va., and Lewis B. Willis, Orange, Va.

E. C. Jameson, who supplied the $65,300 the committee is endeavoring to trace, has been called for Thursday.

Bishop Cannon's protest, made public earlier in the day, charged that the committee's inquiry was a "purely personal attack by a vindictive Virginia Democrat and a Boston representative under Roman Catholic domination" and not an attempt to frame remedial legislation.

The references were to Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, under whose resolution the committee is working, and Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, who has charged Bishop Cannon with violating the Federal corrupt practices act by failure to report his campaign expenditures to the clerk of the House.

Glass Answers Reference To 'Vindictive Democrat'

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—United States Senator Carter Glass said today that if Bishop James Cannon referred to him as "the vindictive Virginia Democrat" mentioned in a cablegram to Senator Nye, chairman of the Senate campaign funds committee, "it should be clearly understood that I have brought no charges before the Nye committee against Bishop Cannon."

"The charge of embezzlement," Senator Glass said, "was projected by a Massachusetts Republican congressman who was affiliated with Bishop Cannon in the last presidential election and, along with Bishop Cannon, opposed the election of the Democratic candidate. I simply offered a resolution, which the Senate unanimously passed, giving Bishop Cannon an opportunity before the Nye committee to clear his name from the shocking charge made by his former political associates of having embezzled campaign funds and devoted them to his own private uses.

"If he did embezzle campaign funds he will not be able to conceal the fact behind childish personal references to me or by seeking to have it appear that his accuser is a Roman Catholic instead of a Protestant who boasts of his Puritan antecedents."

The GIRL About Town

CYNTHIA and I are attending Senator Nye's hearings on Bishop Cannon. The hearings are spicy and promise to be better than a divorce trial. When it comes to the Bishop, Senator Nye pays no attention to the benefit of clergy.

3 Injured in Crash On Mountain Turn

Mother of Washingtonian Thought Near Death Through Injuries.

Special to The Washington Post.

Rutland, Vt., Aug. 25.—Three persons are in Rutland Hospital, one probably fatally injured, as the result of an automobile crash on Sherbourne Mountain today. Two cars grazed each other on a curve and one vehicle left the highway, smashing into a pile of large rocks.

Mrs. B. J. Blanchard, 56, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was scalped when her head struck the roof. The sedan was owned and driven by her son, Eugene F. Blanchard, of Washington, D. C. The driver's father was seriously injured and badly cut on the face, while Robert Minnerly, jr., was severely shaken up and cut. Neither the driver nor Mrs. Robert Minnerly, of Brooklyn, another passenger in the car, were injured. No one in the other vehicle was hurt, which was owned and driven by Robert Tuft, of Bronxville, N. Y. Physicians declared there was little hope for the recovery of Mrs. Blanchard.

Eugene F. Blanchard, an examiner in the United States Patent Office, lives at 5613 First street northeast.

WOODCOCK DRAFTING BAN ON GIRL DECOYS

Says He Can Enforce Dry Law Without Their Employment in Any Way.

(Associated Press.)

A new order of Federal dry law enforcement, in which the use of women as decoys, "blinds" or informers will have no place, was promised yesterday by Prohibition Director Woodcock.

Col. Woodcock said a general regulation was being drafted to prohibit such practices.

"I have decided," he said, "that women should have no place in the enforcing of prohibition. I think we can enforce the law without their use in any way."

This formal declaration apparently was the last word in what appeared to be a controversy between Woodcock and one of his chief aids, Andrew McCampbell, prohibition administrator in New York, who had told newspapermen that "Ladies must and will be" used as aids. He added that "by ladies, I mean ladies."

Woodcock said yesterday that McCampbell had been "entirely justified," but that even such employment of women as aids to agents in getting past the portals of fashionable resorts would be forbidden.

Woodcock's proposed banning of women in dry-law work came from Andrew J. Volstead, of St. Paul, author of the prohibition enforcement law. He voiced the opinion that there was a place in such work for "respectable" women under certain circumstances.

Capt. Merrick Asserts Women Not Used Here

Richmond, Va., Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Capt. R. Q. Merrick, prohibition inministrator, said there is not a woman employed by Federal prohibition agents in the Fourth prohibition district as a blind, decoy or informer.

His statement, which stands for Federal prohibition activity in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina and South Carolina, said, however:

"Sometimes it happens that the presence of a woman is necessary in order to secure evidence or make arrests. In these cases, the Federal agents are permitted to take their wives with them. Such occasions where women might be necessary would be at dance halls and parties. Federal agents with their wives at such functions are in much better position to get evidence than if they went alone.

"Frequently service stations along the highways will not sell liquor to men who are alone, but will sell it to a man and his wife, and especially if their car has a foreign State license on it."

Dry Agents Exonerated In Electrocution Case

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition Director Woodcock has found Federal dry agents not chargeable with the electrocution of Mrs. Helen Vasilzevic, of Milwaukee, who was killed when she touched a defective electric wire while standing in a pool of wine.

Disapproval was expressed by Col. Woodcock over the action of agents who had poured the wine in the Vasilzevic cellar, after making a raid there. He said, however, that at worst this was only "an error in judgment."

HOOVER HOLDS ALOOF ON SHIPPING BLUNDER

of bonehead business," also took occasion to denounce its proposal that one-third of the growing cotton crop be destroyed in order to boost the price. This, he said, was "unthinkable."

Representative Wood said he would oppose any "lavish appropriations" for the Federal Farm Board at the next session of Congress. There is every reason, he said, to oppose lavish expenditure anywhere in the Government.

James C. Stone, chairman of the Farm Board, has not yet revealed how much will be asked of Congress at the next session.

Attack Board's Reply.

Declaring that the Farm Board's reply to demands that the deal be reopened was that the contract has been signed, sealed and delivered and can not be reopened. Dill gave this instance as "just another of the futile blunders that have characterized it since it began functioning."

To Chairman Stone's alleged statement that the matter of shipping the coffee and wheat had not come to his attention until after the bargain with Brazil had been completed, the senator cited published correspondence between Hardin B. Arledge, representative of the Middle West foreign trade committee, and the Farm Board, in which the former urged that ships flying the American flag be used. This, according to Dill, was written ten days before the transaction was announced.

The chairman's reply follows, according to the senator: "The board, of course, favors the use of ships flying the American flag and if any foreign sales are made we will do what we can to have their services used."

"Edwin H Duff, attorney for the American Steamship Owners Association, is also quoted in the newspapers as stating that he brought the opportunity to the attention of the Shipping Board more than a month ago and The Washington Post states that it knows that a member of the Shipping Board took the matter up with a member of the Farm Board back in July," Dill continued.

"Whatever the outcome, an enterprise that begins by taking $2,000,000 away from American shipping has made anything but an auspicious beginning."

3 AIR DERBY RACERS IN FORCED LANDINGS

Mrs. O'Donnell Leads Field Into El Paso; Three Other Women Next.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Three entrants in the air derby from Santa Monica, Calif., to Cleveland, Ohio, were forced down by mechanical difficulties on the lap from Tucson, Ariz., to El Paso today.

They were Mrs. Blanche Noyes, Cleveland, who turned back to Tucson; Earl Rowland, Wichita, Kans., who came down about fifteen miles east of Douglas, Ariz., and Barney Rawson, Cleveland, who landed about eight miles west of El Paso.

None was injured. Officials said Rowland suffered damage to his plane's landing gear. Rawson's plane likewise was said to have been slightly damaged in landing. Mrs. Rowland was traveling with her husband.

52 Planes Arrive.

Fifty-two planes of the 55 which took off from Tucson arrived in El Paso safely. They were led into El Paso by Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Calif., who landed at 3:19 p. m. (M. S. T.). Phoebe Omlie, Memphis, Tenn., was second, finishing nineteen minutes later. Mildred Morgan, Beverly Hills, Calif., was third, and Glenna Granger, fourth.

W. Musgrove, of San Francisco, was the first man entrant to arrive in El Paso. He landed at 3:50 p. m.

Officials emphasized that leadership in the race was based on handicaps given each plane at the outset. Speed of the planes is one of the chief things considered in the handicapping.

Cessna First at Tucson.

Eldon Cessna, of Wichita, Kans., led at Tucson, on tentative figures compiled by officials. Glenna Granger at the same points was ranked first, Mrs. Omlie, second; Edith Foltz, Portland, Oreg., third; and Mrs. O'Donnell, who has landed first at each control point, fourth.

Mrs. O'Donnell has the fastest plane.

Fliers described the trip from Tucson as "bumpy." Mrs. O'Donnell said she was nearly thrown out of her seat once or twice. The route was over desert and mountains.

The fliers spent the night in El Paso. Their schedule called for departure tomorrow morning for Roswell, N. Mex., where they will have lunch, and for Amarillo, Tex., a night control point.

Fliers who have dropped out temporarily may continue later.

INQUIRY IS PLANNED IN SHIP BOMB FIASCO

pointment. It will be expected to recommend any changes in bombing policy it may consider necessary.

Preliminary data indicated the Mount Shasta was taking water due to bomb hits before Coast Guard shells had been directed toward it to remove it finally as a menace to navigation. These data were said to show failure of the bombers to locate the ship on the first day an attempt was made to sink it was due to a wind drift which carried the planes out of their plotted compass course, and which could not be reset in the foggy weather.

A contributing factor in the failure to sink the vessel by concussions from near hit was attributed to the fact the vessel was unloaded and moved readily under the force of the explosions rather than affording a heavy penetrable object. Another factor was said to have been the use of light bombs for economy rather than the heavier type of projectile.

OUTPUTS AND WORK IN PLANTS DECLINE

July and August Conditions Told by Reserve Board; Foods Unchanged.

(United Press.)

Industrial production and factory employment declined in July "by somewhat more than the usual seasonal amount," a Federal Reserve Board summary of business and financial conditions during that month and August revealed yesterday.

Pay rolls decreased from the middle of June to the middle of July, while the general level of commodity prices remained unchanged and conditions in the money market "continued easy," the report said.

"Large decreases in employment were reported at car-building shops and machinery and automobile factories, and at lumber mills," it said. "In the textile industries as a whole employment decreased somewhat less than is usual in July; and there were increases in employment in the woolen goods and men's clothing industries."

A continued decrease was noted in the output of iron and steel, automobiles, lumber and copper, the summary showed, while activity at textile mills and shoe factories was maintained at a high level.

Figures on the value of building contracts awarded during July and the first half of August, as reported to the board by the F. W. Dodge Corporation, revealed a continuation of the downward movement of recent months.

"Freight car loadings increased by slightly less than the usual seasonal amount in July," the summary continued, "and department store sales, which ordinarily decline sharply at this season, apparently decreased somewhat more than usual."

The Reserve Board reported that wholesale prices, for the most part, remained on a downward trend, increases being noted in prices of live stock, meats and dairy products. Prices of building materials and grains, particularly wheat, showed a decline. During July and the first half of August, prices of cotton and cotton textiles "declined sharply."

BUS LINE NOW GOES TO WOODLAND BEACH

Alters Its Route to Serve The Post Development on South River.

Opportunity is knocking every day in the week for residents of Washington who want to insure themselves of permanent summer happiness through ownership of a pleasant resort site and a cottage on it.

Opportunity, this time, is in the form of The Washington Post's offer of lots at Woodland Beach on South River in Maryland. The price of the lots is $93 and only $9 in cash is required, with a subscription to The Post, before your name goes into the records as a lot owner. After the initial payment, the balance may be cleared in easy stages, at the rate of $3.50 per month.

Buying into Woodland Beach is a good investment as has been indicated by the previous sales which run into the hundreds. Then too, the Beach has grown in popularity to such an extent that it is now recognized as one of the leading resort communities of this section.

Because of the number of cottages which are already up and occupied, the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis bus line has altered its route to serve the beach. This dandy vacation spot may also be reached by W. B. & A. electric line or my motor, within a short space of time.

Plans are under way to erect a new $750,000 concrete bridge over South River to replace the present wooden structure. This is expected to increase property values along the river, Woodland Beach deriving much of the benefit.

Take advantage of this offer now while there are still choice lots along the 4½ miles of waterfront still available. Others have found the beach ideal as a resort, why not you?

CONGRESS SESSION FOR COTTON URGED

Gardner, in Plea to Hoover, Warns of Foreign Crops in Attacking Ban.

Shelby, N. C., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina today termed State legislation compelling abandonment of cotton planting as "unsound" without some binding agreement with foreign growers, and called upon President Hoover to convene an immediate session of Congress to consider the cotton crisis.

"Cotton is not merely a sectional crop confined to the South, but is a national and international commodity," said Gov. Gardner. "It is grown in America and in at least twelve foreign countries. Last year the United States produced 13,753,000 bales and foreign countries produced 11,724,000 bales. Shall the South grow no cotton in 1932 and the foreign countries reap a harvest?

"It is my judgment that before any governor calls a special session of the legislature, and as a condition precedent thereto, the President should call Congress into immediate session and lay before the State and foreign governments that grow cotton the absolute necessity for unified action and control.

"Nothing is more unsuond than State legislation compelling abandonment of cotton growing in the South without some binding agreement with foreign growers. The several States can make no treaty with foreign growers. That is solely the function of the Federal Government.

"This movement should begin with a unified policy adopted by the National Government and come down to the producing States instead of beginning in confusion with the several State legislatures and finally hearing up in Congress.

"I, therefore, urge President Hoover to call an immediate sesion of Congress to formulate a sound national cotton policy with respect to overproduction, reduction in acreage, price stabilization, marketing, warehousing and such reciprocal agreements with other countries as may be practicable."

New Orleans, La., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—At the call of Gov. Huey P. Long, the Louisiana Legislature met tonight to consider his proposal to bar cotton raising in 1932 because of the price depression and to prevent the gathering or marketing of any cotton grown that year.

On the point of legality, the governor offered the plan to the Legislature as a means of exterminating the root rot, boll weevils and other pests, and declared in his proclamation that the action was necessary for the assistance to the cotton industry.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Gov. Ira C. Blackwood today sent letters to all South Carolina legislators asking their sentiment on his proposal to call a special session of the General Assembly to prohibit the planting of cotton in 1932. The governor said he would withhold action until he received replies to his letters.

sidering methods of raising funds for the unemployed.

Many conferences were held last week at Minneapolis by representatives of labor, employers, social welfare groups, and Government officials to make plans for unemployment relief and consideration was given to centralization of all agencies supplying food, clothing and fuel.

A definite plan for raising funds was announced at Jacksonville, Fla., after a joint meeting of the city commission, city council, and a chamber of commerce committee. A plan was adopted to add 10 per cent to electric light bills for six months.

At Memphis, Tenn., it was decided to raise $700,000 to take care of the needy and unemployed. Buffalo was reported to be planning relief organizations similar to those of last winter.

Meanwhile President Hoover appointed five new members, including Owen D. Young, to the national advisory committee which he has set up to aid Mr. Gifford in coordinating relief activities.

The others appointed were: James F. Bell, of Minneapolis; Conrad Mann, of Kansas City; Peter G. Spillsbury, Phoenix, Ariz., and S. P. Bush, of Columbus, Ohio. This committee now numbers 65. It is the ultimate purpose to have it include representatives of every State to be contact men.

Those who attended the meeting with Mr. Gifford yesterday, in addition to Fred C. Croxton, assistant director, were: Allen T. Burns, director of the Association of Community Chests and Councils; Linton B. Swift, Family Welfare Association of America; W. J. Ellis, American Association of Public Welfare Officials; Miss Bertha McCall, National Association of Travelers Aid Societies; Miss Joanna Colcord, research division of the Rusell Sage Foundation; the Rev. FIRE DEFENSE FALLS BEFORE IDAHO BLAZE Guardsmen Put to Flight as Two Mines and Dozen Homes Are Swept.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Rampant forest fires broke through well laid lines of trenches on both sides of Grimes Pass tonight, laid waste two mines and a dozen homes, and added color to the performance by putting a band of National Guardsmen to flight.

The fire, burning on a 20-mile front, from Centerville in a huge arc to the south fork of the Payette River, broke through on both sides of the divide across which the fire line ran. The first victim was the $250,000 Golden Age mines. Defenders of the place fled, reporting that the two mills, the shaft house and several residences were aflame as they abandoned it.

In a neighboring canyon, called Charlotte gulch, the Mineral Mining Co. mine was swept by flames and several homes were also burned.

Guardsmen who had concentrated on the divide above Grimes Pass were outflanked by the fire, which flunk a huge crescent of flame about them. With a dozen veteran fire fighters they piled into available trucks and fled. One truck was burned.

The telephone line between Pioneerville and Grimes Pass was burned out, leaving the fate of Grimes Pass in doubt, although fire fighters said a few minutes before the line went out that their trenches were holding and pumps were quieting the fire.

Rome, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—A program of public improvement designed to furnish employment during the autumn and winter was announced today by the Italian government.

The program provides for 17,000,000 days work. The improvements will employ 100,000 men at a cost of $45,000,000. They include roads, railroads, hydroelectric plants, public buildings and further reconstruction of the Vulture and Marche earthquake areas.

TITLES AID LOCATING OF 30 STOLEN AUTOS

Van Duzer Urges Owners to Apply for Certificates in Next Few Weeks.

Investigations by the traffic department in connection with the titling of motor vehicles has resulted in thirty stolen cars being traced, it was announced yesterday by traffic director William A Van Duzer. The automobile squad of the detective bureau will endeavor to find the rightful owners of the cars so that they may get their machines back.

Unless more automobile owners apply for titles within the next few weeks a large number of motorists will be deprived of the use of their machines after January 1, Mr. Van Duzer predicted. He said that an average of only 500 persons a day are applying for titles whereas the bureau is equipped to accommodate 1,000 applicants. There are estimated to be about 125,000 motor vehicles in the District.

Tags for 1932 will not be issued unless cars are titled. Five thousand certificates of title have been approved thus far. Mr. Van Duzer pointed out that the ratio of stolen cars for which titles have been requested is low in comparison with the number of vehicles for which titles have been issued.

Tokyo, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The new earthquake proof American Embassy here, being rushed to completion for occupancy this fall, was the scene of a disturbance today in which 21 interior decorators and painters were injured.

MONSTER TYPHOON IMPERILS SHANGHAI

Storm Does Little Additional Damage in Hankow Flood Area.

Shanghai, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—One of the worst typhoons since 1905 struck Shanghai today, flooding a portion of the city and causing anxiety for safety of many thousands of flood sufferers clinging to water-surrounded dykes and hills of interior China.

Later the storm was intensified. From the tower of the Cathay Hotel the visitors watched the waters of the Whangpoo River sweeping over the Shanghai bund a foot deep. Nearby thoroughfares, including main business and banking streets, were thigh deep. The headquarters of the National Relief Commission was covered with a foot of water.

High winds uprooted trees and drove small craft ashore in Shanghai harbor.

The Chinese press said several hundred huts of the poor in lower sections of Shanghai either were blown down or inundated.

No trustworthy reports of loss of life were received as night advanced, but much anxiety was felt for shipping offshore. There was particular concern for safety of refugees on ships from Hankow, which were reported encountering high seas in the Yangtze River.

Shanghai (Wednesday), Aug. 26 (A.P.).—The flooded Wuhan area, comprising the central China cities of Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, survived yesterday's typhoon without great additional damage, it was learned today, although high winds swept turbulent waters through Hankow, causing many walls to collapse.

Although the Yangtze River continued to subside, its boiling torrent still carried away its daily quota of more than 1,000 corpses from the Wuhan area.

Since authorities were unable to check, accurately the mortalities, all estimates still were mere guesswork. These varied from 25,000 to 200,000 in Hupek Province since the floods began.

Secretary and Mrs. Hurley tonight were guests of honor at a dinner tendered in the name of Nelson T. Johnson, American Minister to China. The minister was in Peiping and Lieut. Col. N. E. Margetts, his military attache, acted as host in behalf of Mr. Johnson.

Several guests attending the dinner were forced to spend the night down town because of the storm.

bank and one count of misapplication of its funds, pursuant to the conspiracy.

The Leas were convicted on four counts, and Davis on three, but Judge Barnhill, who presided over the special term of Superior Court called by Gov. O. Max Gardner to try them, set aside the verdict on the count in which the Leas alone were convicted, as it charged conspiracy, of which they could not have been guilty, the judge said, except in conjunction with an officer of the bank.

They were sentenced as follows:

First count, charging conspiracy to misapply $300,000 worth of the bank's certificates of deposit—Davis, two to three years; Luke Lea, three to five years; Luke Lea, jr., fined $10,000.

Fourth count, charging conspiracy to misapply $100,000 more of certificates of deposit—Davis, two to three years, to be served at the expiration of the first term; Luke Lee, three to five years, to be served likewise; Luke Lea, jr., to pay Buncombe Co. $5,000 toward the costs of the case.

Seventh count, charging actual misapplication—Davis, four to six years, to be served concurrently with first two sentences; Luke Lea, six to ten years, to be served likewise; Luke Lea, jr., fined $5,000 and ordered to pay $5,000 toward court costs.

It was the fifth count, charging misapplication of $100,000 worth of cashier's checks, on which the Leas were convicted alone, on which the verdict was set aside. Returns of "not guilty" were made upon the other counts.

The story of the trial was wrapped around last fall's financial collapse in the South, when Caldwell & Co., Nashville Banking firm, with which Lea was closely identified, failed. Almost simultaneously with the Caldwell collapse, a large number of banks in several Southern States were closed.

It was the story of how two men—Lea and Davis—fighting desperately against being wiped out, combined forces to aid each other, only to be caught by the crash in the midst of what States attorneys described as frenzied finance."

Judge Barnhill fixed appeal bonds for the defendants at $30,000 for Luke Lea, $10,000 for Luke Lea, jr., and $10,000 for Davis. The younger Lea will be required to appear in court tomorrow to post bond for the $25,000 fine and court costs assessed against him. The bond will be held by the court pending action on the appeal.

NEGRO ELK CAUCUS BACKS CANDIDATES

Reelection of Columbia Lodge Man as Exalted Ruler Foreseen.

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 25.—Political methods were applied to fraternal matters today when a caucus of delegates to the convention of the Grand Lodge of Colored Elks, with Perry W. Howard, Republican national committeeman from Mississippi, presiding, decided on reelection of J. Finley Wilson, of Columbia Lodge, for the tenth time as grand exalted ruler.

The caucus also indorsed Judge William C. Hueston, assistant solicitor of the Postoffice Department, for reelection as commissioner of education, and James E. Kelly, of Birmingham, as grand secretary. Judge E. W. Henry, Philadelphia, is favored to defeat the present incumbent, Henry S. Warner, of New York, for treasurer.

The grand lodge was addressed by Armond W. Scott, George E. McMechen, George E. Wobecan and T. Gillis Nutter, past grand exalted rulers, and by W. Justin Carter, of Harrisburg. A parade, which required four hours to pass a given point, was held.

Robert J. Nelson, director of the commission on civil liberties, addressed a communication today to the American Legion, as follows:

"Dr. Leach, of your Detroit committee, is here extending an invitation to all legionnaires, through this grand lodge, to attend the national convention of the American Legion in Detroit next month. We are unable to act on this invitation since evidence has been presented that colored legionnaires are denied affiliation with State departments in the South, because of racial identity. We await official word on this subject."

Manufacture of Beer Urged as Help to Idle

Baltimore, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The belief that legalization of the manufacture of beer would wipe out the Treasury deficit, give employment to several hundred thousand men and help solve the problem of surplus grain is expressed by Senator Millard E. Tydings in a communication to the Evening Sun.

Testimony before a congressional committee in 1910 that the brewing industry used 2,990,357 tons of coal is cited along with a statement in 1917 by Herbert Hoover, then food administrator, that the industry used approximately 37,800,000 bushels of grain a year at that time.

Youth, 14, Shot Down; Associate, 18, Is Held

New York, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Fourteen-year-old Frank Loffredo was shot in the stomach, police said, by a companion as the two walked along a Brooklyn street late today. Loffredo was taken to a hospital seriously wounded and John Mucciola, 18, was arrested on a charge of felonious assault pending investigation.

Mucciolo told police he had found the gun and it exploded accidentally while he and Loffredo were examining it. The shooting, which occurred in a tenement section, provoked considerable excitement when police first said they were unable to find Loffredo's assailant.

C. S. Dewey Relief Chairman.

Chicago, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Charles S Dewey, former Assistant Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, was today appointed chairman of the trades, industries and professions division of the joint emergency relief campaign which is headed by Samuel Insull, jr. For the last three years Mr. Dewey has lived in Warsaw as financial adviser to the Polish government.

DEBTS AND ARMAMENTS.

Recommendation from the World Bank's committee that reparations and war debts be further reduced has aroused no enthusiasm in this country. The American people are not disposed to regard obligations that grew out of the war as mere international banking problems that can be solved by financial jugglery. With characteristic superficiality these international bankers suggest that the burdens of war be shifted to the United States because this country would feel them less than Europe. They ignore the fact that the United States was in no way responsible for the war. In effect, they are trying to transfer Europe's punishment to the American people.

German reparations and the allied nations' debts are an ever-present reminder of the cost of modern war. Thirteen years after the close of the war Europe is suffering extreme penalties. The people of Europe ought to be impressed as never before with the staggering expense of the conflict in which they engaged. They should sense the calamity of war and its aftermath. A bitter lesson is imposed upon them in the form of taxation, unemployment and economic derangement. It might be supposed that so long as the memory of these hardships last nations will be reluctant to manifest a belligerent spirit.

But the international bankers come along with a theory that part of this burden should be lifted from Europe's shoulders and placed upon the American people. They do not pretend that this country was responsible for the war, or that America needs a lesson in keeping the peace. They argue only that European countries should be relieved of burdens which they have pulled down upon their own heads.

To relieve Europe of financial responsibilities for the war would be a world-wide demoralizing influence. It is a dangerous and immoral policy to allow any nation to escape the consequences of its wars. If Uncle Sam should go into the business of financing wars and subsequently canceling the debts, the world could look forward to no more peace. The plan to unload financial responsibility for the World War upon the United States, for the sake of stimulating business, is a diabolical invitation to European governments to make war recklessly without paying the cost.

The demoralizing influence of this suggestion stands out in bold relief when Europe's preparations for war, even in this critical period, are taken into consideration. Europe is spending billions of dollars on armaments. Great Britain, for example, insists on maintaining the largest navy in the world in spite of the fact that her people are crushed with taxation and the government faces a financial crisis. In effect, the United States is asked to take over Europe's debts from the last war so that European governments can spend their money on armaments for the next great conflict.

In the United States organized military forces are equal to 0.35 per cent of the population. Many European nations keep from 10 to 15 per cent of their entire population ready for war in either active or reserve forces. The following table indicates the vast size of Europe's military establishments:

Natison.	Total Organized Forces.	Per cent of Population Under Arms.
Belgium	571,494	7.1
Great Britain	565,033	1.23
Czechoslovakia	1,647,121	11.25
France	6,298,428	15.4
Greece	495,789	8.1
Italy	5,964,764	14.3
Poland	1,974,033	6.43
Roumania	1,890,612	10.68
Russia	5,167,000	3.27
Spain	2,329,392	9.3
Switzerland	630,090	15.8
Sweden	875,887	14.38
Jugoslavia	1,469,929	10.6
United States	427,400	.35

Every one of these countries maintains a larger armed force than the United States. If European governments are overburdened with debt, why don't they trim their military budgets? When Europe's gigantic armies are surveyed the suggestion that the American people assume Europe's debts incurred in the last war takes on an aspect of caustic irony. The United States would default in its duty as a great world power if it should seriously consider lifting the burden of the last war from Europe's shoulders so as to make the maintenance of bigger and better armaments possible.

THE POLICE INQUIRY.

Four policemen in the First Precinct have been suspended pending a grand jury inquiry into the allegation of a prisoner that these officers were present when he was subjected to a brutal third-degree ordeal. Inspector Stoll, who made a preliminary investigation, lays great stress upon the probable guilt of the prisoner, who is charged with housebreaking. The guilt or innocence of the third-degree victim is not, of course, the issue in this case. The Police Department itself is on trial.

So many disreputable policemen have been caught up recently, and charges of third-degree practices are so numerous, that Commissioner Reichelderfer does well to hold the superintendent of police personally responsible for a reform in the force. It is evident that gross negligence attends the system of selecting policemen. Any business concern which hired such a large percentage of bad men would soon go bankrupt or be overhauled by its management. The District of Columbia, under the eye of the President of the United States, can not permit the police force to degenerate. The Government will not tolerate a practice which enables criminals to wear the uniform of law officers.

A grand jury several years ago put its finger on one source of evil when it advocated abolition of the police trial board. The trial of policemen by policemen for offenses which are in reality crimes against the public, is an illogical and futile system. The superintendent of police should have greater disciplinary powers, enabling him to get rid of petty offenders. Officers charged with crime should be tried by the courts, as other citizens are tried.

The beating of prisoners for the purpose of extorting confessions is as stupid as it is brutal. Such confessions are worthless when placed before any judge who knows the law. If the present inquiry should reveal that the third degree has been practiced in the Washington Police Department, a housecleaning from top to bottom will be the only remedy that will satisfy the public.

TOURISTS FOR ALASKA.

The greatly diminished tourist trade to Europe this year has resulted in many Americans seeing their own country for the first time. They are commencing to realize that this continent has points of interest and scenic grandeur easily comparable to the most celebrated natural beauties of the Old World. One section that is just beginning to be appreciated is Alaska. Due to inadequate and irregular transportation, the Territory, until recently, has been little frequented by tourists.

The projected international highway which Alaska hopes to have built will open a vast field of inspiring scenery to the summer motorist. Magnificent mountains and valleys as well as the irregular coast line with its fjords provide views unsurpassed in any part of the world. The Northern Lights, so vividly described by Robert Service, are an experience which no visitor to Alaska would ever forget. These wonders will be made easily accessible to the traveler when an adequate traffic artery is opened to the South.

In discussing this highway, following a recent visit in Alaska, Charles F. DeGanahl, world traveler and financer, predicted that it will pour life into many parts of the Territory now dormant. Aside from opening a new market for automobiles and a new vacation land for tourists, it should stimulate the development of permanent settlements. The barriers now impeding free circulation would be broken down and the way would be paved for utilization of Alaska's rich natural resources.

AIRSHIP TRANSPORTATION.

A new ocean liner which is almost half again larger than the present queen of the seas is under construction. The comfort and luxury of these great steamers is equal to that found in the most palatial hotels, yet the public wants to spend the least possible time in passage, and a premium is gladly paid for a day saved. Speed is so important a feature in transportation today that were it possible to build a ship that would cross the ocean in half the time that is now required it would be undertaken immediately by the great steamship lines.

The economical limit of speed for surface ocean-going vessels has about been reached, according to Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy. The most practicable way to speed up transoceanic traffic is, therefore, by use of airships. In the near future dirigibles may be expected to cross the seas in half the time consumed by water liners.

A great impetus has been given this type of aircraft by the completion of the first of two rigid airships authorized by Congress in 1926. The Akron, which was recently launched, has a volume of 6,500,000 cubic feet, while the second ship, the ZRS-5, will probably be enlarged to a capacity of 7,500,000 cubic feet before completion. Following the lead of the Navy, it is understood that private interests will soon build still larger commercial air liners.

These giant ships will carry passengers, freight and mail between inland cities of foreign countries and inland points of this continent. The capitals of Europe will be linked with those of America and the Orient, and the unexplored regions of the earth will be revealed through the use of airships. Voyages around the world by air may become a common occurrence.

THE LINDBERGHS' FLIGHT.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh have completed a successful flight from Washington to Japan, but from the standpoint of aviation their trip has been singularly unimpressive. Before leaving Washington Col. Lindbergh said that they would fly leisurely and would attempt to break no records. Their aerial voyage was not an exploit, but a vacation trip. Safety was their primary consideration, as it must always be in practical aviation.

The distinguished fliers arrived safely in spite of extremely poor flying weather. Several times they were forced down by fog. Once when they were unable to find a hole in the fog blankets above Nemuro they were in actual danger. Motor trouble also interfered with their progress. But the dauntless colonel and his plucky bride easily overcame these difficulties, proceeding always with caution and careful preparation. Their skill and good judgment are worthy of high praise.

Nevertheless, it is notable that the Lindberghs might have saved about seven days if they had taken a train across the continent and a cabin on a transpacific liner. Their flight required 27 days. Passenger vessels make the trip from San Francisco to Japanese ports in 17 days. The Lindberghs doubtless could have made much better time without encountering formidable hazards during the first part of their flight. But there seems to be no question that the vicissitudes of aviation retarded their arrival in Japan and unduly prolonged their trip.

Post and Gatty recently flew around the world in nine days, but they subordinated safety and comfort to speed. If the Lindbergh flight may be regarded as a typical safe and sane air voyage between Washington and the Orient prospects for the establishment of regular air lines over this route in the near future are rather discouraging. The spectacular performance of adventurous pilots too often leads to reckless speculation about the possibilities of commercial aviation. The difficulties which beset the carefully planned Lindbergh expedition serve to remind the public of the vast gulf between exploits in aviation and practical, safe flying.

BUSINESS STANDARDS

By NORTON J. WILLIAMS, in the Kiwanis Magazine.

Better business standards are a necessity in the building of more successful business or industrial enterprises. It has taken years of thought and labor on the part of honest business men to stabilize many of the things in our commercial and economic life that today make it possible for the public to have confidence in well-established business.

Honesty is the first requisite in any well-established business or profession. Honesty must be practiced with the business itself, with the customer, with the competitor, with labor and with the laws of the country.

One of the most necessary of business standards that require serious consideration at the present time is that of improving employment relations. Employers of labor must give serious consideration to a plan that will have a tendency to give permanent employment to men at wages that will encourage efficiency and provide for a standard of living that will make happy, contented homes. Labor has a right to sanitary working conditions, pleasant surroundings, an opportunity for promotion, and facilities to adjust grievances promptly and equitably.

There is no reason why labor should be called a commodity and separated from the human part of the individual. Labor is not a commodity any more than human beings are a commodity. More serious thought must be given to the question of employment. Today men are oftentimes hired and fired just like so many animals instead of being dealt with as human beings. This question has a very serious underlying condition that has a strong tendency toward the development of socialism and still worse—communism. Business is entitled to a fair return on its investment and a human being is entitled to a fair return on his services and an opportunity to sell his services at all times.

A great nation can not be built and maintained when there are men, women and children hungry and in poverty because of no fault of their own.

I am a believer in the development of labor-saving machinery, but when that development reaches the point in our economic life that it forces men who are willing to work out of employment, then there must be an adjustment in the number of hours that the individual works at his occupation so as to provide work for those who are thrown out of employment through the perfection of the labor-saving machines.

We need fewer millionaires and more men of the rank and file in positions that will assure happy, contented and prosperous homes.

The executives and employers of labor in our big industrial organizations must come to the realization of this important fact or the ultimate results are to be feared.

Our working man does not want the dole system. He wants employment, and with employment he will become a consumer of commodities produced in our industrial organizations.

Business standards and codes of ethics are today a reality. What we need now are men who will put these codes of ethics into practice and apply them to their customer, their competitor, their factories and the men working in the factories that make the finished commodity possible. Then and then only will business standards accomplish the greatest good in the present business world.

France and Italy will have a private talk about ships just to show that Latins as well as Saxons and Teutons can indulge in exclusive confabs.

New York certainly has been "slow to anger;" we shall now see whether it is "better than the mighty" gangster.

Yes, Reginald, we understand the British system somewhat, but still insist it is more oligarchical than democratic for a few political leaders to speak for their parties with sufficient authority to overthrow a government.

Mr. Gifford's assurance that the relief fund drive will be efficiently synchronized is entirely befitting for this machine age.

Dr. Ayora, of Ecuador, now holds a unique record for a Latin-American president. He has had his resignation unanimously rejected one year and likewise accepted the next—both peacefully.

With typhoons added to Chinese woes of flood, pestilence and starvation, their belief in "a hell of witchcraft" is not so hard to understand.

Secretary Mellon returns to confront some budget worries at home, but it isn't as though he had England's plight to worry about—a budget as large as ours, with only two-fifths as many people to collect it from; a public debt four times that of the United States, a ruinous dole to pay and income taxes exceeding 20 per cent.

For the simile junk heap: As overworked as "outstanding" and "potential."

The situation in England does cause general speculation as to why it is necessary for the ship of state to be on the rocks before political parties can cooperate for the national welfare.

"Or what man is there of you who, if his son ask bread, will he give him a stone?" This seems to contain all the elements of the Farm Board, Brazil and American shipping episode.

Gov. Pinchot's appeal for Federal aid was the season's prize boner. Pennsylvania is nearly free from indebtedness and enjoys a large yearly surplus. If general Federal aid should be voted that State would pay back in taxes four dollars for every one it could receive.

"Georgetown records severe earthquake 7,000 miles away." Probably in China, but she will hardly notice one more calamity.

Retail advertising in the newspapers increased during July. Now, that surely shows something.

If under any utterly inconceivable circumstances Federal aid should become necessary we will not call it a dole.

It seems as though word might now be sent to Secretary Stimson that things have quieted down, the weather is cooler and world series is approaching, so he can come on home.

CAGES WHITE SPARROW.

F. B. Thompson reports that a pair of sparrows, nesting in his garage, hatched out two young birds both of which are white. At several times during the past few years white sparrows have been seen in Wolbach, says the Wolbach, Nebr., Messenger. Sometimes the reports were scoffed at and folks reporting the albinos were accused of "seeing things." But Mr. Thompson captured one of the birds and has it in a cage at his home, where any who are skeptical may see it themselves.

Skinning Buffaloes Made Hides Cheap, But It Soon Finished a Meat Supply

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SPEAKING of crops sold at auction to satisfy mortgages, a great national magazine says with grim satisfaction: "Such was the price wheat men had to pay for their bull-headed refusal to heed the plea to reduce acreage."

Big-town critics seem to think that farmers have a national organization to regulate their affairs and tell them how many acres to plant.

As a matter of fact, each farmer is an independent unit in a vast industry that has no guidance or means of coordination.

Every wheat and cotton planter knows that a reduction of acreage would raise the price of his product, but he also knows that any effort to effect a reduction without assurance of cooperation would be equivalent to cutting his own throat.

If he should cut his acreage in half, the only result would be to cut his income in half.

Why should he make a martyr of himself to benefit others who persist in planting all they can harvest?

If overproduction seems stupid, it is the stupidity of an industry—not of the individual.

And before you ridicule the farmer, it would be well to examine the methods of other men in other fields.

Lawyers and doctors are so numerous that few are able to earn a good living, yet the schools add to the surplus year after year.

Does any father sacrifice his son for the sake of those already established in a profession?

Every fledgling who hangs out his shingle is like a new planting of cotton or wheat, yet nobody ridicules parents who train their sons for a professional career.

There are so many writers that editors can take their pick of manuscripts at their own price, but the fact that few authors earn as much as a railway engineer doesn't discourage the millions who yearn to see their stuff in print.

When the radio boom was at its height, more than 5,000 manufacturers fought for a share of the business—with the result that 90 per cent of them failed to pay expenses.

The oil men continue to drill more wells despite present overproduction, and their cut-throat competition serves only to flatten their own purses and waste the Nation's precious store of natural gas.

The truth is that every calling and every industry suffers from the same anarchy of individualism that keeps the farmer destitute.

The rape of vast resources made America rich for generations, but the time has come when centralized control and sane cooperation are essential to profit or survival.

You can't win a war if every private is free to map out his own campaign.

Gov. Roosevelt's Dilemma.

Minneapolis Journal.

Sooner or later every New York aspirant for the Presidency of the Democratic persuasion must face the Tammany dilemma. If he ties up with the Tiger, he risks widespread opposition throughout the country. If he beards the Tiger in its Gotham den, he faces the loss of his own State in the convention, knowing that Tammany usually controls the delegation. If nominated in spite of Tammany, he may well fear that the Tiger's treachery will cost him the large electoral vote of a great and pivotal State.

Grover Cleveland, a statesman of indomitable courage, did not hesitate to fight Tammany, when governor of New York and after. The country was electrified by the slogan, "We love him for the enemies he has made," uttered by Gen. E. S. Bragg, of Wisconsin, in seconding his nomination at the 1884 convention. He carried New York by a narrow margin, despite Tammany, and was thus elected over Blaine.

The Business of the States.

New York Times.

As a citizen of Pennsylvania, Senator Reed resents the position into which Gov. Pinchot has tried to put it. A great and rich commonwealth, Pennsylvania cuts a sorry figure soliciting Federal alms from an impoverished Federal Treasury. Undoubtedly Mr. Reed represents the major opinion of Pennsylvanians when he says they want no grant from Washington. The State is perfectly able to take care of its unemployed. To raise the money for the purpose at home will be cheaper than to pay a large share of the Federal taxation which would be necessitated by Federal appropriations. Besides, it is distinctly the business of the State and local authorities to take care of unemployment in Pennsylvania. It is a "local problem." The State and local governments can not run away from their responsibility and shift it upon the Federal Government.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Farm Mergers and Mass Production of Crops Are Represented as Grave Dangers to American Agriculture.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thomas Campbell, overlord of 95,000 acres in southern Montana, said recently: "I could take hold of four 160-acre farms in Nebraska, Kansas or Iowa, and merge them into one farm, and make money. Right away I'd get rid of four superintendents at $1,800 each, and hire one superintendent—a college man—at $3,000. Only men with plenty of capital or credits can go into farming and make a success of it."

Campbell says he'd "make money" by thus merging farms. In this little phrase "make money" lies the secret of the failure of agricultural America. Nowadays American farmers want to make money. They are not satisfied with a plain, good living from the farm. By corralling thousands of acres of land, as Campbell has done, and as Henry Ford proposes to do, and by employing much farm machinery and few men, a few farmers become rich at the expense of dozens of families who could have made a living on the land occupied by these few. Mergers, monopolies and chain enterprises in general are bad enough, and time and again have caused revolutions in nations, but farm mergers and monopolies cut the vital cord of a nation. Campbell says he would get rid of four superintendents and hire one in their place. The same area of land that once supported four families would, by Campbell's scheme, support only one family, or one college man.

The reason why China is the greatest agricultural country in the world is that men are able there to support families on small tracts of land. America can not become a great agricultural nation, as it ought to be, and a country of large population, if men are able, or are permitted, to corral large areas of land; for such men do not seek to further the welfare of their fellow-men, or to increase the population, but seek wealth at the expense of their fellows.

Investors Who Gamble on Insurrections in Other Countries Deserve to Lose Their Money, Subscriber Says.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many readers of Mr. Quillen's article in your issue of August 19 will think that he considers a federal government responsible for the payment of bonds issued by rebellious states for the frank purpose of financing an insurrection. We who are in the habit of reading Mr. Quillen's letters are convinced of his sanity and feel that this was not his meaning, but it was unfortunate that he did not make that meaning clearer.

Of course, the investor who helps finance an insurrection in a friendly country becomes a rather unscrupulous gambler, and, when the insurrection is unsuccessful, finds he has put his money on the wrong horse, he ought to be a good enough sport to swallow his loss without pleading the baby act.

I am sure the United States has never demanded from a foreign federal government the repayment of American money lost in financing a losing insurrection in the said state. If I am wrong I hope to be corrected.

Police Are Criticized for Brutal Treatment of Citizens by One Who Thinks Washington Should Be Model City.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As I scanned the pages of The Post on Sunday morning I found the article on the brutal treatment of a Mr. Harker.

Law enforcement is a requisite in any society, and I believe it should be insisted on, even in our fair city. I do believe, however, that it is a bad policy to fight fire with fire. By this I mean it is wrong to depend upon criminals to bring criminals to justice.

As I see it, Washington should be the model city of the United States, and yet the police of this city are constantly within the range of a reproachful eye.

I believe this young man's story to be true, because as I stood less than a block from the Nation's Capitol, and under the shadow of its very dome, I saw an officer viciously strike a man who had done nothing and offered no resistance.

Justice is a beautiful word found generally in the dictionary. I feel that Washington's police department should be thoroughly Christianized first of all. "Oh, justice, what crimes are committed in thy name!"

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

"Throughout the years that we've been wed,
With all their storm weather,
And all their fits of doubt and dread,
Somehow we've kept together.
Somehow, my dear, in spite of care
And hurts that came to smart us,
And little wrongs which seemed unfair
We've never let them part us.

"Oh, we've had days of storm and stress,
And we've had griefs that tried us;
But sorrow never made love less,
Or threatened to divide us.
Somehow in spite of all I've done
And said when irritated,
We've managed to keep going on
Like sweethearts, newly mated.

"We've had our share of ups and downs,
And tasks to irk and fret us,
Our foolishness brought frequent frowns,
Our blunders grave upset us,
But since the tie that binds oft snaps
For others just as plucky,
And we've escaped disaster, p'raps
My dear, we've just been lucky."

The letter was received from the bureau of public roads and was referred to Capt. Joseph C. Cissell, counsel to the county commissioners, for study and report.

ALL PRINCE GEORGES MONEYS ALLOCATED

Curtailment of Road-Building Program of Board Appears Likely.

Probability that all the road construction recommended by the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners would not be carried out this year, was seen yesterday, following an announcement by the State Roads Commission that all county funds had been contracted for.

Maj. H. D. Williar, jr., chief engineer for the commission, wrote the board explaining that contracts have already been let for sums aggregating about $2,000 more than was allotted to the county. These contracts do not include those for the Ritchie-Marlboro road, or for a highway from Central avenue through Maryland to the District line.

Maj. Williar's letter was in answer to a query from the board, whose members were curious about the construction. According to the engineer, there was available for the county this year, $201,077.90. Contracts let so far have been for $203,835.06, so that even the curtailed program will cost more than the full estimate. Maj. Williar did not give any explanation of why the construction work costs were higher than estimated. He did say that no further construction could be considered until more funds were available, which is not likely to be until next summer.

A delegation from Maryland Park appeared before the board at its meeting yesterday to ask about the construction of the road through that town. They were informed of the letter from the road commission. They also asked the improvement of Valley street, which was referred to the district road committee.

The board also ordered that the road commission be asked to put shoulders on Defense highway from Capitol Heights to the Crain highway. Beall Bowie, of Largo, appeared to stress the need of these shoulders.

An application for a building permit for a number of tourist cabins in Berwyn was refused by the board, after several petitions opposing the construction had been received. Fred H. Cross had filed the application. Cost of the cabins was estimated at $1,150. The board also appointed Kelly Woodell constable in Kent district.

Demands Granted Women Who Work

Legislation Gains in Several Countries Reported to Geneva.

Geneva, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Agitation for the organization and regulation of women workers is gaining strength, and some successes, throughout the world, according to reports received in official quarters at Geneva.

The French Federation of Women's Trade Unions is urging the eight-hour day for all occupations for women and is advocating part-time work for wives and mothers.

The Italian government has decreed that marriage may not constitute a reason for cancellation of women's employment contracts and that married workers must receive preference over unmarried ones.

The German factory inspection service reports marked favorable results from the legislation relating to the employment of women before and after childbirth.

In Russia special attention is being paid to the vocational training of women workers, of whom at present about 55 per cent are said to be skilled workers.

An All-India Women's Conference held recently at Lahore advocated the employment of women doctors in factories where there are a considerable number of women and asked for the passage of a maternity benefits act for the whole of India.

Former Judge Back in City From Europe

Mr. Linebarger's Plan to Journey to China Is Thwarted.

Judge Paul M. Linebarger has joined Mrs. Linebarger in their home on R street after an extended stay in European countries. He arrived in New York Monday on the Western-land after having been obliged because of business to cut short his trip, which had China as the final destination.

Judge Linebarger resigned as Federal judge in 1907 to associate himself with the late Sun Yat Sen, founder of the Chinese republic. He has been connected with the Chinese government since that time and has made twelve trips around the world to promote understanding between China and other nations. During his last few months in Europe Judge Linebarger has delivered numerous lectures in many European countries. While in the Capital he is expected to give several addresses on China.

Miss Dorothy Havenner Wed to E. D. Beauchamp.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Beatrice Havenner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Havenner, of Clarendon, Va., to Mr. Earl D. Beauchamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beauchamp, took place Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents, with the Rev. Edward G. Latch officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a white satin gown fashioned on princess lines with a yoke of Alencon lace. Her tulle veil, arranged softly about her face, was held by a cap of old lace, and she carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Audrey May Stansell was the attendant, wearing a frock of pale blue mousseline de soie over blue crepe de chine having a sash and other accessories of pale pink. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. Edward Beauchamp was best man for his brother.

A reception followed, after which Mr. Beauchamp and his bride left for a trip to Niagara Falls.

'Automatic Writing' Bares Latent Talent, Expert Says

Baltimore, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Practically every one has an interest or talent of which he is unaware, in the opinion of Dr. Anita M. Muhl, of San Diego, Calif.

Dr. Muhl uses a unique method—"automatic writing"—to bring the hidden talents to the surface.

An expert in the field of psychotherapy, Dr. Muhl was brought to the Phipps Psychiatric Institute of Johns Hopkins Hospital to demonstrate her methods with the patients there.

The automatic writing system works something like this:

One's arm is placed in a comfortable position in a device arranged for the purpose, and a pencil placed loosely in the fingers. The attention is diverted by reading a detective story or some other bit of fiction aloud.

While this goes on the pencil moves, its direction dictated by the unconscious mind.

The result may occasionally be a drawing, a fragment of a fairy tale or a poem, the revelation of an unknown talent.

In this fashion the psychiatrist acquires information about what goes on in the patient's mind that is inaccessible to ordinary questioning.

Patients by this method, said Dr Muhl, have disclosed memories from the age of 2 or 3 years.

In like manner, of course, undesirable traits come to light, and these the psychiatrist tries to eliminate by diverting the undesirable quality into a constructive channel.

"Few people," she said, "get into difficulties if they are doing what they like to do. The thing I try to do is find a creative outlet for the individual, give him something to do that he is really interested in."

One woman, Dr. Muhl related, revealed 23 distinct personalities.

Much of her work has been with children.

Dr. Muhl is a native of Indianapolis and educated at the University of Indiana and George Washington University. She was at one time assistant physician at St. Elizabeths Government Psychiatric Hospital at Washington.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"VIRGO."

IF August 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 10:10 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 12:35 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7:40 p. m.

Astrological influences on August 26 will be of an uplifting nature—stress will be laid on the spiritual side of life and the mind will wander from workaday things. Those in public or philanthropic work will have great opportunities of service and be able to realize some cherished ideal.

Children born on this August 26 will be good humored and friendly, born leaders and industrious workers. They will have considerable tact and diplomacy and a delightful sense of humor. They will carve out their own fate, though they will meet with reverses at times.

You swell the ranks of those who believe in safety first, last and always. You may dream of great deeds and profitable adventures, but you are not prepared to pay the price by taking risks. You are by nature fitted for the work of a conscientious and reliable subordinate. You are too self-conscious and timid to make a real leader. You will try to improve your position by easy stages and will never attempt to climb the ladder of success by leaps or bounds. You do not overlook or neglect details—in fact, you are fussy about them. You are not a "society" person, but you are friendly and sociable.

Your views are rather limited, but your judgment is practical and your character reliable. On the whole, you are a very contented person, and you are not bothered by longings which can never be filled. You take life as it comes and make the best of it. Your movements are not quick or spontaneous, but, like your mind, show deliberation. It is useless for any one to try to hurry you at any time.

You are not a great reader, and seldom one of fiction. You enjoy sports, but only as an onlooker. You will be faithful and constant to the person whom you love.

Successful people born August 26: James Harlan, lawyer and senator.
Stephen F. Nash, lawyer.
James Couzens, former director of Ford Motor Co.
August Heckscher, capitalist.
Leonard Metcalf, civil engineer.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

A Six-Year Courtship.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: I don't know where to start but here goes. I am 26 years and Ralph is 28. He has been going with me six steady years, is friendly but not a really good sport and mixer like I am. I am in for all kinds of fun while he sits back more.

When I was a youngster my parents died and since then am staying with my aunt. I have a good job, have saved some money, know a good bit about music, make most of my clothes. All these good things I owe to auntie, she treats me wonderful, but here's one thing I think I can't stand any longer.

She and her children ate always casting up to me that Ralph doesn't want me. Why we're hanging around so long and what we're waiting for?

Ralph is a cashier, has saved some money, too. He always had it his own way, was never pushed around like me, never knew anything of trouble so when I tell him my troubles he doesn't say anything, just sits still.

I never wanted to marry young, always thought I wanted to understand things, marry a nice fellow and have a nice home, all which my mother did not have.

But the last year I am just longing for a home all because my girl friends are married and I am just a little lonesome. Now Ralph and I think lots of each other, never cheat on each other, but still he doesn't say anything about marrying; just seems to be satisfied to go on and on.

He doesn't spend much money on me. I'm satisfied, but my aunt says he is too tight to marry and spend it for a home. I deny it, but it's true, too true. Now don't think I'm a man hunter, but I didn't have a real home since I was 10 and I sure do long for a home and—babies. Please tell me what is wrong. Is it Ralph or I? I would like to get him away from his selfishness. Sorry this had to be so long, but thanks for any advice you may give. CONSTANCE.

There are times when I feel the good old-fashioned idea of expecting a man to propose after a few hundred evenings on the sofa had much to recommend it. This is one of those times. I do not know Ralph. Would not want to know him. But I venture the guess that he knows very well how your family feel about him—and does not care. There are few grown men who do not know what is expected of them as men. Few so dull that they do not know when they are violating the rules of the game. Those who ignore the rules and bank on a girl's dependence up on their society to protect them from any unpleasantness are pretty inferior people.

My advice is not going to please you. And you are not going to follow it. Yes, you have guessed it. I think you should give him up. He lacks something more important than the pride he lacks. It is sensibility. He is not even uncomfortable in his most embarrassing position. He knows he is an intruder, a man without status, and he does not mind!

If you can hold one man for six years, you can hold another. And finding one better than Ralph should be easy. So find one. Date him. Date others. In polite parlance give Ralph the atmosphere! He will probably ask you to marry him when he sees that he must. But if you are wise you will not accept him. It is so hard to imagine a worse fate than marriage with a man who lacked sensibility. That of course is up to you. The Lord does fit backs to the burdens they go looking for, so perhaps you might soon become insensible too. Who knows? But at least make a start. Date a new man. Summer is a good time to find one. They are all out looking for romance. Be the answer to some boy's search. By this time next year Ralph will be just a memory. Get busy.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Suzanne Talbot combines red and violet blue in an interesting ensemble of "Lassecia de Rodier," oddly incrusted.

New York, Aug. 25.

JUST where in the world have the little bitty bags and the great huge carry-all bags gone? And who can bemoan their parting when one sees the chic, amusing and beautiful bags of medium size that have taken their place? It's been hard, indeed, on lovely ladies to be expected to cram money, cosmetics, keys and handkies in the diminutive trifles that were labeled bags during the past few months, and the few strong-minded women who carried large bags anyway were distinctly unstylish.

Which makes it all the better that this autumn bags will be medium large, cut on unusual and graceful lines that minimize the appearance of bulky largeness, the while they hold a surprising number of things in their depths!

Flat envelope purses are the most popular these days, and they're either cut on semicircular lines or have curved incrustations for trimming. Grained leather in dark shades is much used, and I saw a great many of dark crepes, both silk and wool. 'N' if you have priceless petit-point in your possession, use it for pocketbooks now—for it adds a smart touch of color to autumn wardrobes, and people who don't own any, or can't do any, or can't afford to buy any are having to satisfy themselves with bags woven in a petit-point design!

• • • •

The Beauty Sorceress.

"And why did you happen to think of using your ice beauty treatment in the bathtub anyway, grandmother?"

"The better to catch promptly the damage done by the pore-relaxing steam, my dear! Your body can't get along without warm, luxurious, relaxing baths, of course, but they are enemies to your complexion if you don't fight against their ill effects with ice!"

• • • •

O-o-o-o-h, but the color combination of the ensemble I sketch for you today is unusual. Suzanne Talbot made it of "lassecia de Rodier," in red and violet blue, which is very new and stunning. The red coat is lined with the violet blue, with a loose scarf collar and jagged incrustations on the cuffs. And the frock itself of violet blue is most effectively incrusted with jagged and notched incrustations which fall into godets to give comfortable skirt width. And the neck is incrusted with a strip of the red material in a simulated bow effect.

It's very smart to combine two brilliantly colored materials these days—'n' a good way to combine two costumes into one chic one, n'est-ce pas?

• • • •

And Suzanne Talbot designed the hat to accompany her ensemble and made it of the same materials in the new shape, as sketched above.

• • • •

The Dare department of The Washington Post has had to move out of the office and onto the roof, so deluged has it been with your stamped, self-addressed envelopes sent in for the Getting Ready for Autumn With Plenty of Time and Makeovers leaflet! So, if yours wasn't among them, you'd better hurry up and send it! I'll bet you never guessed the things you can and should do right now to get your clothes ready for cooler weather, nor the last-season things that need just this little touch and that to become last-minute autumn creations!

• • • •

Dare's weekly fashion letter, in The Sunday Post, offers valuable advice. Watch for it.

Au revoir!

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

THE LACE-WING FLY.

THE lace-wing fly is the insect which is responsible for the brown spots which appear on the leaves of rhododendrons and also on the foliage of the members of the laurel family. There are many varieties of laurel, but all are susceptible to lace-wing fly or lace bug as it is sometimes called.

You can always be sure of the presence of this insect when the leaves of your rhododendrons turn brown or greenish yellow and then begin to fall. You can easily control the activities of this pest by spraying the under sides of the leaves just before the flower buds begin to open in June. This is the time you should have sprayed the bushes, but if you failed to do so, do so at once or at least before the first of September. The lace-fly overwinters in the egg stage. The eggs, which are nearly cylindrical, are usually deposited in pockets on the under surface of the midrib of the leaf. The young hatch in May and a second brood appears a few weeks later. There seems to be two broods annually. When spraying you can use any of the commercial preparations recommended for lace-wing fly, or you can use the spray recommended by the Bureau of Agriculture, which is composed of fish oil soap and nicotine sulphate, or a 5 per cent solution of the kerosene emulsion.

You can also use these same preparations for the azalea lace bug, which is the insect which attacks the azalea. This insect, while closely related to the lace-wing fly, produces three generations annually.

Kerosene emulsion is one of the most effective contact insecticides we have but must not be used on the more succulent plants such as coleus or begonias. A stock emulsion may be prepared from kerosene, fish-oil soap and water in the following proportions:

Stock Emulsion	Small quantities	Large quantities
Kerosene	2 pints	2 gallons
Fish-oil soap	1 ounce	½ pound
Water	1 pint	1 gallon

Cut the soap into chips or shavings and dissolve in the water by boiling. Remove the hot solution from the fire and add the kerosene very slowly, stirring constantly. It is important to have the solution hot as well as to agitate it thoroughly while adding the kerosene. Small quantities may be emulsified by beating or whipping with a paddle. This will give a creamy emulsion, which may be bottled and kept until ready for use.

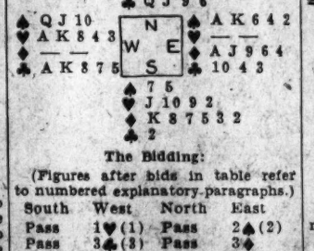
Keeping Open the Lines of Communication.

IN Contract seas float many a derelict, the result of some Bridge ship foundering on the hidden reefs of distribution. Distributional monstrosities are interesting types of Bridge hands, but when the bidding discloses that the hands do not "fit" it is well, even with great honor strength, to stop and count up unquestioned assets before venturing too far or contracting for too many tricks. Singletons, voids and the like have a habit of repeating themselves. If one hand has a singleton, it is more than an even chance that another hand also has but one of a suit. If one hand is void, it is quite probable that another hand will disclose a void in another suit. The law of symmetry does not work with unfailing accuracy, but it does work with enough regularity to be worth remembering and applying when the bidding or play discloses unusual types of suit distribution.

One of the basic troubles with distribution freaks is the great danger known to all Contract players, that the hands will not fit. In other words that the lines of communication between the two allied armies (the hands of the Declarer and the Dummy) may be cut by an alert adversary, and honor-tricks in side suits fall before apparently insignificant trumps in the opponents' hands can be taken out. If the allied hands do not furnish a wealth of entries, then care must be taken to preserve such as do exist until such time as the enemy has been made helpless.

Take the hand below dealt recently in a Duplicate match in New York City, in which some of the city's most expert players came to grief and then failed to solve the mystery of making 12 tricks on the hand.

Both sides vulnerable, South Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♥ (1)	Pass	2♠ (2)
Pass	3♣ (3)	Pass	3♦
Pass	5♣ (4)	Pass	6♠ (5)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—West's hand is a good type of two-suiter, but the lack of intermediate strength in either suit makes it a safer Opening bid of one. If partner is able to respond freely, then game at the best declaration should be quite probable.

2—East is at once on his guard against a possible freak distribution. He is void of the suit bid by his partner. However, his hand has 3 honor-tricks and is strong enough to force partner to keep the bidding open until game is reached.

3—Assured of another chance to bid, West uses this round of bidding to convey additional information to his partner as to his distribution, rather than raise the spade contract to game. His hand is much stronger than he has yet shown, and after East's Forcing Takeout a Slam appears to him as a practical certainty.

4—West now is put on notice that his partner's hand does not perfectly fit his, as he had hoped was the case with the Jump Takeout in spades. He reads East's hand as quite likely containing five spades and five diamonds with only three cards in hearts and clubs. It is, of course, possible that the diamond suit may have only four cards. A healthy fear of the reefs of distribution causes him to leave the bidding of the Slam up to East.

5—Even with the knowledge that finesses, if necessary, can not be taken in hearts, the Slam try by East can not be criticized. Apparently the trump situation is satisfactory and West's club bid shows to East two suits which should provide means of ingress and agress in either hand as the playing proceeds.

South's choice of an Opening lead is but a forlorn hope at best. He appears to have only two chances of defeating the contract; the vague possibility that his partner may make a trick, and that either one of his worthless trumps may be cashed on a club or that the damond King behind the Declarer may materialize into a trick. The lead of the club singleton, bad as it is with two trumps, appears to be better gamble, and it was the one that most South players adopted.

Unwittingly or not, it was a most excellent lead. For the moment it cut one line of communication from the East hand to the West and this line could not be reestablished until South's trumps were drawn. The lead was marked as probable singleton. The difficulty of communication between the two hands made it necessary for East to proceed with caution. He led two rounds of hearts, discarding two diamonds. The third round of hearts was ruffed with a small trump in the closed hand and then the Ace of diamonds was laid down and the second round of diamonds trumped in the Dummy. Now East led two rounds of trumps, retaining the lead in the Dummy and led the fourth round of hearts, which he trumped with the King. There was only one trump outstanding and this was then drawn as the contract was assured when both North and South followed to the fourth round of hearts. East reentered Dummy by means of the club, discarded his last diamond on the established heart and conceded the last trick to North's Queen of club.

The line of play, had South opened a trump originally, would have been no less interesting. The hand is one that well repays study.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The Responding Hand.

Partner of the Opening Hand is called the Responding Hand. In the Forcing System the Responding Hand, far from merely assisting, is, in most cases, the principal hand and carries the brunt of bidding. As a rule the game of Slam value of the Opening Hand is relative and depends upon the distribution and balance of honor strength in the Responding Hand. Accordingly the whole scheme of Contract bidding is so designed that the Opening Hand, whose first bid is necessarily a leap in the dark, "approaches" with low bids and feels out the situation before definitely choosing the attacking or defending direction.

UTILITY PROPERTIES REACH $870,091,786

North American Company's Assets Are $62,593,387 More This Year.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Assets of the North American Co. and its subsidiaries, including the Washington Railway & Electric and Potomac Electric Power Cos., on June 30, were $870,091,786.98, President F. L. Dame, of this group, reveals in his quarterly letter to stockholders received yesterday. On June 30, 1930, their assets were $807,498,339.77.

Speaking of additional facilities in Washington, President Dame writes: "Potomac Electric Power Co. has completed a two-story building extension to its Tenleytown substation. Equipment is being installed which will increase the capacity from 4,000 kilowats to 8,000 kilowatts. Another new automatic substation is being erected at Eckington, in the northeast section of Washington. When equipped with necessary machinery it will have a capacity of 8,000 kilowatts, with provision for an ultimate capacity of 12,000 kilowatts.

"Both of these substations have been made necessary by the increasing demand for residential electric service and, in the case of the Eckington substation, by the removal to that locality of a number of large printing establishments and other commercial businesses which were formerly located in the downtown section recently cleared to make way for the Federal Government's public building program."

Federal Trade Examination.

Reviewing the examination of the company by the Federal Trade Commission, he states:

"Public hearings on the North American Co. and subsidiaries were held by the Federal Trade Commission in Washington May 13 to June 4, 1931, in connection with its public utility inquiry conducted under resolution adopted by the United States Senate February 15, 1928. Commission accountants and engineers, who had been examining the books and records of the North American Co., and subsidiaries during the last three years, introduced their reports and exhibits regarding the corporate and financial history of the companies, the growth of the properties, and the policies and practices in the parent company's relations with its subsidiaries and the operating companies' relations with the public.

The commission's examination of the North American Co. extended back to its incorporation in 1890, and dealt also with the assets and capitalization of its predecessor, Oregon & Transcontinental Co., organized in 1880. These reports and exhibits, supplemented by testimony of the various examiners, practically complete the Commission's record of financial and other data on the North American Co. and all subsidiaries, except for engineering data on the Wisconsin-Michigan group, and financial and engineering data on the District of Columbia group, the latter not having been included as North American subsidiaries when the inquiry was begun.

Additional Reports.

"These additional reports will probably be introduced when the Commission reconvenes this fall. Edwin Gruhl, vice president and general manager of the North American Co., was called upon to testify as to company policies. In response to an expression by Mr. Gruhl, at the conclusion of the hearings, of the company's appreciation of the courteous treatment accorded by the Commission and its representatives, Commissioner Edgar S. McCulloch and Judge Robert S. Healy, chief counsel, stated that the Commission was appreciative of the complete measure of cooperation given by the North American Co. and its subsidiaries throughout the inquiry.

"Electric output of the North American Co.'s subsidiaries for the twelve months ended June 30, 1931 was 4.43 per cent less than the output for the twelve months ended June 30, 1930, and .48 per cent more than the output for the twelve months ended June 30, 1929. Output for the first six months of this year showed a decrease of 5.59 per cent compared with the first half of 1930, during which a temporary revival of industrial activity occurred, and a decrease of 3.3 per cent compared with the first half of 1929. In these comparisons the figures of the former California subsidiaries are eliminated for all periods referred to. Lessened industrial use of electricity has been partly offset by increases in residential service.

The advertising committee of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will meet Friday morning at the association's headquarters in the Becker Building. It is expected that a program of activities for the new administrative year will be outlined.

Alfred H. Lawson, vice president and real estate officer, Washington Loan & Trust Co., has returned from a several weeks' vacation at Spring Lake, N. J. Herbert W. Primm, assistant real estate officer, same institution, is back from his vacation at Wildwood, N. J. Assistant Treasurer Norman E. Towson, manager of the foreign department of this bank, has returned from a vacation spent at Charles Town, W. Va.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With DON B. REED

MAYBE there are some things about Polly Moran, who will appear on both stage and screen at Loew's Palace beginning Saturday, that you didn't know and in which you would be interested. Polly is heading next week's stage show and also has an important role in "Guilty Hands" the feature picture.

This comedienne was born in Chicago on June 28, year unannounced. Her father was Tom Moran, a contractor and her mother, still living was Mildred Francis Kelly. Miss Moran is 5 feet 4 inches tall; weighs 134 pounds, has dark brown hair and blue eyes. She was educated in St. Patrick's convent in Chicago and in the public schools there. An agent saw her clowning in school and soon she was a famous vaudeville star. Polly has crossed the Atlantic fourteen times and is as big a hit in Europe and South Africa as she is in America. The combination of Marie Dressler-Polly Moran is the first team in which she appeared. In 1913 she made her debut in the pictures as Charley Murray's wife in the Mack Sennett comedy called "The Janitor."

Miss Moran is an excellent horseback rider and a fine swimmer. Her closest man friend is William Haines and outside Marie Dressler, her best woman friend is Fanny Brice. She has a 12-year-old son attending Culver City Military School in California. She has always been noted for her ready wit and claims that if the noise of all the falls she has taken for the films were put together, they would make an eruption of Mount Vesuvius sound like a day in the public library. And of all things, her favorite pastime is sleeping.

Announcement is made from the local offices of the Shubert-Belasco Theater that the new season there will begin the week of September 27 with the presentation of the Moss Hart-George S. Kaufman comedy of the "unquiet cinema," "Once In a Lifetime." This play is now rounding out a full year's engagement in New York, one of the few productions which have survived the heat and other tribulations of the theater. The New York company, with one or two minor changes, will go on tour beginning September 21 in Newark, N. J., making its second stop in Washington. Producer Sam H. Harris plans to keep the New York cast practically intact for appearances in the key cities during the 40 weeks scheduled. The show has an extended booking in Chicago after leaving the Capital.

The young man who sang to you last night or will sing tonight if you happen to attend the show at the Tivoli is Jim Flaherty, who recently sang from the stage at the Fox and who is well known in radio circles locally. Mr. Flaherty's number at the Tivoli is "Come to Me."

Winners of the horseshoe pitching tournament at the Brightwood Playgrounds last night were guests of the management of Warner Bros. Earle Theater to see "Bought," with Constance Bennett and the stage show headed by Joe Penner. No, the boys did not carry the "shoes" with them.

As a sort of direct slap at Wampas, the press agent orgahization in Hollywood, which each year selects certain youngsters as coming stars, the Fox Film Corporation has announced three "debutante" stars from its own studios. It will be recalled that the Fox publicity experts withdrew from Wampas when Fox failed to place a girl on the list of selections made recently. The Fox "debs" are a blonde, a brunette, and a redhead and in the same order by name, Linda Watkins, Conchita Montenegro and Helen Mack. Fox officials at a dinner for the girls announced they expected great things from them in the future. The girls, I might add, average just a trifle over 19 years of age.

Manager Harry Crull and his force at the Fox are preparing for big things as "Bad Girl" draws close. In addition to a special 11:30 o'clock show tomorrow night there will be five de luxe shows on Saturday and four on Sunday to take care of the folks who want to see what is being acclaimed as the best Fox effort of the season.

And I'll bet Sam M. Lewis, who wrote the words and Jesses Greer, who jotted down the music, would have been surprised to learn from an evening contemporary's column that Carl Weyforth, Palace pianist had written "Mender of Broken Dreams," a number featured by Al Wohlman this week at the Palace. Mr. Wohlman does announce Mr. Weyforth as the author, but that is a gag as old as the hills and is no reason for sending Mr. Weyforth up among the Tin Pan Alley boys, with a loud huzzah. The number came out last year and has been featured on the radio (pardon me, Mr. Heinl) by Guy Lombardo. Probably Mr. Weyforth wishes he had written the number for its quite catchy

I'm certainly glad that dust is settled. Arne't you?

O'Neill Disclosed As Ready Witness

Attorney Bares Paper Saying Late Oil Man Offered Aid in Teapot Dome Quiz.

(Associated Press.)

An affidavit asserting that the Government at all times knew where it could serve a subpena upon James E. O'Neill had it wanted his testimony in the Teapot Dome case was made public yesterday by Philip P. Campbell, former representative of Kansas.

The affidavit, made by O'Neill for use in obtaining a new passport several years ago, was made available by Campbell, his attorney, after news of the oil man's death Monday in Cannes, France.

O'Neill resigned the presidency of the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. in 1923 and went to France to a villa, which the affidavit said he purchased in 1915 and had been visiting for a number of years before the oil lease investigation started.

Foreign-Born Whites Number 13,366,407

(United Press.)

A foreign-born white population of 13,366,407, representing almost 11 per cent of the entire population, was recorded in the United States on April 1, 1930, the Census Bureau announced yesterday.

Of this total, nothing is known of the citizenship status of 473,607. New York lead all the States with the largest number of foreign-born residents, having 3,191,549. South Carolina, with 5,986, was last. The foreign-born white population in 1930 comprised 7,153,709 males and 6,212,698 females.

It has been proven many times that Business opportunities, or merchandise for sale in the Classified Columns of The Post are worth investigating.

"I'm older than you think I am . . .

"BUT I remember some of the things that I heard when I was younger.

"I was told to watch out for one of those so-called friends who is so mighty glad to see you today—almost going to hug you; and the next time you see her, is holding her head high up in the air and won't even speak to you.

"I was thinking about this while I was enjoying a CHESTERFIELD cigarette. You know, I have been smoking CHESTERFIELDS quite a long time, and they are not like some of our friends—one thing today and another thing tomorrow. They are always the same—always mild—always so pleasing in taste. They just satisfy all the time.

"By the way, that reminds me of something. I was playing bridge recently with a girl friend of mine and two men, and after we finished the game they began lambasting a whole lot of things and folks. Some of the talk was right funny, you couldn't help laughing; but, really, they pulled down a whole lot of things, and didn't build up anything.

"And that reminded me of a salesman who called to see me the other day to tell me something about CHESTERFIELD. The thing that pleased me more than anything else was that he didn't lambast and cuss out any other cigarette; but, of course, he thought that CHESTERFIELD was the best . . . And I rather agree with him. They do satisfy."

GOOD . . . they've got to be good!

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

OFF THE CHEST * * * The Athletics will be the favorites to beat the Cardinals again in the world series * * * Despite the fact that in the 1930 series the collective batting average of the Philadelphia team was only .197 * * * And the Cardinals hit only .200 in the six games * * * Not championship slugging * * * It's the pitching that wins for both * * * And with Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg the A's have the superior pitching * * * The Mid City Boxing Club at Laurel paid off its preliminary boys before the sheriff attached the receipts * * * Joe Bruno and the other boy from Baltimore received exactly $5 for their battle, which was the best slugfest on the card * * * Not $5 apiece * * * And their net share when the taximan put in his bill for $4 was 50 cents each * * * For six rounds of slugging * * * Employes of the club are negotiating for a benefit show there for the benefit of the employes who weren't paid off * * * Johnny Doeg, the national tennis champion, has been beaten in all the big tournaments he entered this summer * * * Would you call it a Doeg's life? * * * And there is a concerted movement to draft Helen Wills for the 1932 Davis Cup team * * * They could do worse than Queen Helen * * * If Ellsworth Vines does not win the national singles title he doubtless will be ranked No. 1 man by the U. S. L. T. A. in the light of his previous triumphs * * * Where was he when the Davis Cup team was being selected? * * * Or, rather, where was the Davis Cup committee? * * * The Braves are the only team in the National League to win more games from the Cardinals than they have lost to the Cards * * * Anything approaching their success last year against the Yankees would have made second place safe for the Nats this season * * * In 1930, Washington lost only five of 22 games to the Yankees * * * Thus far this year they have won five and lost eight against McCarthy's team * * * And with Ruth and Gehrig hitting home runs the way they are and the Nats' using three pitchers to a game the way they have been the Yanks' second place chances are very, very bright * * * Speaking of baseball, there was a very, very shady deal pulled by Newark the other day * * * Reading had a star outfielder named Quellich * * * Newark could use him but league rules prevent interleague deals at this late stage of the season * * * Detroit helped Newark out * * * The Tigers bought Quellich from Reading and three days later turned him over to Newark, which is outfling for the International League pennant * * * With the Washington and New York American League Clubs having shunted stars to Newark previously, it looks as if the Bears are out to buy the pennant either with cash or friendship * * * It looks like a case for Judge Landis * * * Sentiment creeps into the U. S. G. A seeding of stars for the national amateur tournament * * * Ouimet is ranked No. 6 man after having lost in the first round last year * * * New York boasts five big shots of the amateur realm * * * Phil Perkins, the former Britisher; George Voigt, George Dunlap, Maurice McCarthy and Gene Homans * * * The winner might well be among them * * * The dark horse is Charley Kocsis, the 19-year-old Detroit lad, who eliminated Ouimet in the first round last year * * * Kocsis's latest feat is a victory over Tommy Armour in a 20-hole playoff of the Michigan open * * * Ray Steele says hick doctors in the sticks charge him ten bucks for a medical examination before his bouts, according to the by-laws of commissions empowered to administer wrestling * * * The game is palling in New York, where the wrestlers are outdrawn at the gate by the boxers even at the depth of the boxing depression * * * Joe Turner will not herd his pachyderms inside the Auditorium again until the weather demands it * * * But he's paying rent there just to maintain his option on the big indoor arena * * * He should be fifty grand ahead of the game during the past two years if the parasites haven't bled him of the heavy dough he's made * * * Georgetown's football hopes took one on the chin when Red Dashiell decided to stay on the farm * * * The best back-field prospect since Johnny Bozek, who never had a fair chance at the Hilltop under Lou Little.

Blow on Head by Ball Is Blamed by Cochrane

Philadelphia, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Mickey Cochrane, star catcher for the champion Philadelphia Athletics, looking somewhat rundown, returned to Philadelphia today from St. Louis to take a rest before returning to the A's line-up.

Cochrane said he had not felt right since he was hit in the back of the head by a pitched ball in the game in Cleveland on August 16.

U. S. Doubles Is Romp for Favorites

9 Seeded Pairs Gain Second Round in Easy Fashion.

Yeomans-Rudy Bow to Vines-Gledhill in Three Sets.

By BILL KING.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Opening play in the national doubles tennis tournament today ran on an even and enjoyable course for the favorites. Each of the nine seeded teams, including one foreign pair, was safely berthed in the second round.

The draw for this golden jubilee team play was so lacking in dynamite that the first-round matches were nothing more than brisk workouts to fit the favorites for the stiffer competition ahead. Most of them, including the defending champions, Johnny Doeg and George Lott, used their opponents for experimental purposes.

Doeg-Lott Cut Loose In Third Set.

Doeg and Lott drew J. Brooks Fenno and Henry R. Guild, Bostonians, and the champions had a most pleasant time during this slipshod match. They sauntered through the first two long sets, working just hard enough to get and then maintain a slim lead, but cut loose in the third and blasted the Bostonians off the courts for a 10—8, 9—7, 6—2 victory.

Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, the second seeded Californians and popular favorites to annex the title which Doeg and Lott have held for two years, won as they pleased against Edgar Yeomans, Washington, and Elmer Rudy, Baltimore, 6—4, 6—3, 6—2. They took matters a bit more seriously than did the defending champions but were never forced to go higher than second speed.

FIRST ROUND.

Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., and Berkeley Bell, New York, defeated Gustave Boehmer and Ted Eggman, St. Louis, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3; Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, and Bruce Barnes, Austin, Tex., defeated Fred and Don Dixon, Provo, Utah, 6—1, 6—1, 6—1; Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore, and W. F. Coen, Jr., Kansas City, won by default from Louis Thalheimer and Lucien Williams, Chicago.

Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, Calif., and Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Calif., defeated Ed Yeomans, Washington, and Elmer Rudy, Baltimore, 6—4, 6—3, 6—2; Frank Shields and Sidney Wood, New York, defeated Henry Yuzui and Leslie Johnson, Minneapolis, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2.

Frederick J. Perry and George Patrick Hughes, England, defeated Carl Kamarath, Austin, Tex., and Clayton Burwell, Charlotte, N. C., 8—6, 4—6, 6—1, 6—2; Eugene McAuliff, Yonkers, N. Y., and Keith Werner, Los Angeles, defeated David Jones, N. Y., and Charles Greene, Garden City, Long Island, 6—3, 6—3, 7—9, 6—4; John Barr and James Quick, Dallas, Tex., defeated H. Perkins and Thomas Jansen, Cambridge, 6—3, 6—2, 5—7, 6—0.

Lloyd Nordstrom and Wallace Scott, Tacoma, Wash., defeated Gregory Verstraten and Fedasenport, New York, 6—4, 2—6, 6—4, 4—6, 8—6; H. H. Hyde and John Gow, Hartford, Conn., defeated Fred C. Beggy and E. T. Herndon, New York, 7—5, 10—8, 2—6, 6—3, 6—2; E. W. Felbleman, New York, and J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., defeated Arthur and Robert Turner, Boston, 6—0, 6—4, 8—5.

Brown Weakens in 9th After Yielding But 4 Hits; Errors Aid Nats to Win

Crowder Halts Rally With Bases Full, One Out.

Nats Gain Early Lead Off Herring; Lead Yanks by Game.

By H. G. SALSINGER
(Sports Editor, Detroit News).

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 25.—Detroit played a poor fielding game today and kicked in three runs for Washington, but even if the Tigers had fielded perfectly this afternoon they couldn't have won. Lloyd Brown and Alvin Crowder gave a pitching performance that permitted only one earned run. While Washington scored five runs, of which only two were earned, they needed only two to win. The score, as you have probably guessed, was 5 to 1. The victory enabled the Nats to hold their one-game second-place margin over the Yanks, who also won.

Brown pitched a clever game up to the ninth. In eight innings he allowed four scattered hits. Two of them were scratch singles, but one was an honest home run, a drive into the right field bleachers by Roy Johnson. This wallop came in the eighth inning, when two were gone and it was the hit that kept Detroit from being shut out.

Tigers Fill Bases In Ninth.

After all his fine work in the eight preceding innings Brown seemed to have spent himself by the time the ninth arrived. Alexander singled, Gerald Walker popped out, Rogell doubled Alexander to third and Richardson walked on four pitched balls, filling the bases. The tying run had hardly reached first when Walter Johnson came from the dugout, waved Alvin Crowder in from the bull pen and sent Brown to the locker room. Bucky Harris countered with Harvey Walker as pinch batter for Hayworth and he popped a weak foul fly to Spencer. Mark Koenig batted for Charlie Sullivan and rolled an easy grounder to Myer, ending the game.

In only one other inning did Brown have any trouble and that was the fifth, but here he pitched himself out of the hole in noble manner. Gerald Walker singled and Rogell walked on four pitched balls. Richardson fouled out and Hayworth filed to West in short center. Walker and Rogell worked a double steal with Herring at bat. Herring stood three and nothing with Brown and the left hander slipped over three successive called strikes on Herring to end the inning.

While Herring was the victim of some loose fielding, Brown had perfect support, just as three Washington pitchers had perfect support yesterday. A fast double play saved Herring in the first inning where he walked Myer and Cronin and where Manush singled but no one scored. In the second inning Herring hit Bluege with a pitched ball. He got rid of Khuel and Spencer but Brown smashed a two-bagger off the left field wall, scoring Bluege.

Johnson Helps Manush Get Triple.

In the third Manush hit to right with one out, a hit that should have been an ordinary two-bagger but Johnson played it badly and Manush got a triple instead. Cronin hit to Rogell, who waited too long to find out what Manush intended to do and when he found out it was too late to throw to the plate. That made the second earned run and the two would have been enough to win but three more were scored in the sixth.

Manush hit a slow roller to Gehringer, who made a late and wild toss past first, Manush reaching second. He took third on a passed ball. He held the bag on Cronin's fly but tore for home on West's grounder to Herring. The pitcher made a perfect throw to Hayworth but Manush knocked the ball out of the catcher's hands and scored. West took second on the play, did not advance on Bluege's grounder but scored on Kuhel's scratch double to center, Walker losing the ball while attempting a shoestring catch. Spencer singled to short left and Stone overplayed the ball and fumbled, Kuhel scoring.

Washington did not threaten after that.

Here is a play for the 1931 book: In the sixth inning today, Bluege tapped to Herring, the Detroit pitcher, and was out, Herring to Richardson, the Detroit third baseman. The explanation is simple. West was on second when Bluege grounded. Herring, and then Richardson, tried to run West down. Richardson finally ran him back to second and tagged Bluege, who had taken two bases during the running down exercises.

Herring First Tiger to Hit Two in Game.

Herring is the first Detroit pitcher to hit more than two batters in one game this year. He hit Bluege in the second and Manush in the seventh.

The Messrs. Alfred Schacht and Nicholas Altrock have outdrawn every Eastern team that has played here this year, probably showing, as one sarcastic gent observed, that the public prefers conscious to unconscious comedians.

McManus grounded out for Herring in the eighth and Charlie Sullivan, the tall and silent fox hunter from Yadkin Valley, pitched a scoreless ninth. McManus, according to rumors, will not be included in the Detroit roster next year.

BROWNS BOW TO MACKS, 4 TO 1

Rommel Grants But 6 Hits as A's Win Third in Row.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Lefty Grove's teammates are making the St. Louis Browns pay for keeping the star moundsman of the champion Athletics from attaining the league record of consecutive victories. Today the A's turned in their third successive victory of the series, 4 to 1.

Grove was defeated, 1 to 0, in the first game of Sunday's double-header, thereby being deprived of his seventeenth straight victory, a feat never before accomplished in the junior circuit, but since then the Athletics have permitted the Browns only two runs in 27 innings.

Eddie Rommel held Killefer's men to six hits today while George Blaeholder was hit for eleven before he retired for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Stiles finished the game.

YANKS BLANK CHICAGO FOR 7TH IN ROW

Pennock Scores Club's First Shutout; Two Steals by Chapman.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees scored their first shutout of the season today when Herb Pennock, veteran southpaw, let the White Sox down with six hits, and blanked them, 6-0. It marked the Yankees' tenth consecutive victory over Donie Bush's team this year and their seventh triumph in a row.

Ben Chapman, fleet Yankee outfielder, enjoyed a spacious afternoon! In addition to beating Carl Reynolds, of the Sox, in a special 100-yard dash, he hit a triple and single, scored twice and stole his fiftieth and fifty-first bases of the year. The figure was last reached by George Sisler, who stole 51 for the St. Louis Browns in 1922.

Cardinals Rally To Win in 10th

Seibold Pitches Shut-Out Ball for Braves Until Ninth Inning.

Boston, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The Cardinals made it three in a row from the Bruins by winning, 4-1, today in ten innings. Socks Seibold held the league leaders without a score for eight innings, but weakened in the ninth.

The lone Braves' run came in the sixth on Berger's triple and Shealy's single. The Cardinals tied it up in the ninth, when Hafey doubled to drive in Bottomley.

Pitching of Giants Stops Cubs Twice

Hubbell and Chaplin Turn In Victories as Team Extends Lead.

New York, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Two fine pitching performances by Carl Hubbell and Jim Chaplin and the lusty hitting of young Ott enabled the Giants to take both games of today's double-header from the Chicago Cubs, 5-3 and 7-1, and stretch their lead over the Hornsbymen to five full games.

Hubbell allowed only five hits in the opener, but might have lost, at that, had not Ott connected for his twenty-fourth homer of the year in the sixth inning with two aboard.

SINCLAIR TO AUCTION STABLE, QUIT RACING TEMPORARILY

25 Rancocas Horses to Be Sold

Action Follows Close on Ban on Stable at Saratoga.

Mokatan Is Among Famed Racers to Be Sold Thursday.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The famous Green and White Silks of Harry F. Sinclair's Rancocas Stable will be temporarily retired from the turf next week when the entire stable of horses in training, 25 in number, is sold at auction in the Saratoga race course paddock.

Sinclair's announcement came unexpectedly today and followed a recent ruling of the Saratoga racing officials forbidding the entering of Rancocas horses. The ruling was made as the result of the poisoning of the stable's Ladana, the Saratoga stewards holding trainer Frank Taylor responsible for his horses.

Unable to Give Stable Proper Attention.

In making his announcement, the oil man said he was unable to give his stable proper attention, due to the press of his business. Sinclair has been in the West for the greater part of the last eight months.

The master of the Rancocas silks is expected to be back in the game next year, however, as he has over 100 mares, yearlings and weanlings at his farm in New Jersey. Standing at the head of the famous breeding farm are the well known sires, Zev, Lucillite and Bud Lerner. Sinclair disposed of a part of his stable at a sale last winter.

Included in the group of 25 horses which will be offered at public auction Thursday, September 3, are many stake winners, including Mokatam, winner of the Suburban, the Excelsior, the Spindrift and Initial Handicaps this year. Others that have carried the Rancocas colors to victory are Ladana, Grattan, Despoil, Defier, Kayo, Mowris, Deduce, Arab, Glidelea and Zonda. Defier and Leonine are in the $60,000 Hopeful to be run two days after the sale, while Despoil, Zeklel and Defier are eligible for the $100,000 Futurity at Belmont Park.

Rancocas Stable Rich in Turf Traditions.

The Rancocas Stable is rich in the traditions of the turf. Under the guidance of the late Sam Hildreth the stable headed the money-winning list in 1921, 1922 and 1923. Sinclair gained international fame as a sportsman in 1923 when his colt Zev, representing the United States, defeated the English Derby winner, Papyrus, in the $100,000 International at Belmont Park.

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

LINCOLN FIELDS, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 25.—A well-balanced mid-week program has been arranged for the patrons of Lincoln Fields tomorrow, which is featured by the Hotel Louis Joliet Purse, a high-class claiming event at the 1-mile route. Seven fleet milers have been entered and the headliner should produce a thrilling contest. Although the remainder of the card will be decided by the platers, large fields have been entered in most of the events.

ISLAM, from the J. Howard Stable, has reached the peak of his form, and, on his recent brilliant effort in which he scored over a clever field, the son of The Porter is favored to annex the feature event. SKIRL, a consistent Whitneyite, should force the pace, with LADY DEAN selected to show the way to the others.

FIRST RACE—SUSU, which displayed speed in his last outing, is favored to graduate from this band of nonwinners. ZINA has trained well, and on recent form must be considered a serious threat. COUSIN JUDY appears best of the others.

SECOND RACE—INFINITY showed a splendid effort in his previous start against better company than he meets here, and on that sterling performance appears well suited by the conditions. GUIDE RIGHT, from the Mrs. Pollard Stable, is the place selection, with PHANTASIME as the show possibility.

THIRD RACE—CHATTER QUEEN, a handsome daughter of Chatterton, which finished second to Hygro last start, is picked to gain the honors. BRYONIA is attaining her best form and in this company, figures to furnish stern opposition. SHAKER LADY, from the Fairview Farm string, should have little trouble in holding the others safe.

FIFTH RACE—SWEEP PAST, a consistent filly carrying the Miss Hart colors, is the selection in this number. The daughter of Sweep On, turned in a clever victory last start at this distance, and under the conditions, figures to repeat. VERMICULITE has shown several excellent races in this class and figures to extend the top one. DRASTIC DELIGHT is favored for the short end of the purse.

SIXTH RACE—GOTOIT needed his last. In that effort at the mile and a sixteenth route, the Goldblatt 4-year-old faltered after setting the pace. At this route, he is favored to improve enough to score over his thirteen rivals. NURSERY RHYMES is rounding to form and on his last figures to be close up. THE SOUTHERNER has two clever victories to his credit and must be conceded a chance, in this open race.

SEVENTH RACE—MADCAP MARVIN, from the Valley Lake Stable, turned in a brilliant effort last start to finish a length behind Play Ball. With certain improvement, the colt is selected to gain premier honors. BRUSH, a useful plater in the Bidewell and Lewis Stable, is capable of forcing the pace. SEAPINGTON has shown ability to negotiate a route, and in this class, may prove dangerous.

LINCOLN FIELDS, ILL., CHART, AUGUST 25, 1931.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARMION, $3.44, $3.04, $2.56; K. RUSSELL, $5.88, $4.14; PIETRO, $3.88.

MARMION, easily best, soon sprinted to the front and, after being joined by K. RUSSELL approaching the stretch turn, shook off the latter when headed for home and was in hand at the finish. K. RUSSELL acted badly at the barrier, but broke fairly well and, moving up fast on the outside, caught MARMION after causing a jam on the far turn, but could not remain with the winner, although lasting to best the others. PIETRO was a forward factor throughout. CAMP DOUGLAS showed a creditable effort. HOOSIER PRINCE was blocked in the stretch. DISCOBOLUS met with much interference and had little chance. ACTUARIUS met with interference on the far turn.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:07. Off at 3:09. Winner, Nevada Stock Farm's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VOLTA GREEN, $6.96, $4.30, $3.24; SHASTA BROOM, $12.36, $6.90; RUSTY, $5.82.

VOLTA GREEN lost little time in getting to the front, opened up a good lead when SISTER MARY tired in the stretch, but was forced to be ridden out to hold SHASTA BROOM. The latter, close up from the start, closed gamely on the outside and was gaining. RUSTY saved ground on the stretch turn to best the others. TIGER PRINCE was going well at the finish. SISTER MARY was used up trying to catch the winner in the early stages and stopped badly.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:39. Winner, Bluestar Stable's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MALOLO, $11.56, $6.48, $3.04; STOCK MARKET, $6.60, $3.14; PANSY WALKER, $2.50.

MALOLO, off well, took a short lead after going a quarter and, coming over to interfere with CHEERS on the far turn, opened up a good advantage and showed the way to the end. STOCK MARKET was forced to race wide at the stretch turn, but closed well and was gaining strongly at the wire. PANSY WALKER, a contender most of the rail during the back stretch run, was shuffled back, but continued well and was going gamely at the finish. CHEERS weakened under punishment in the last furlong. ANGRY met with some interference and showed a good effort.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:07. Off at 4:09. Winner, Walker & Combs' br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACK IVORY, $11.90, $6.56, $3.56; ANGELENA, $6.30, $3.80; ELLEN N., $2.94.

BLACK IVORY, lucky to get through on the rail around the final bend to a short lead on the turn, bested ANGELENA in a hard stretch battle. The latter raced strongly from the start and, holding on courageously after being passed, was pressing the winner at the finish. ELLEN N. was outrun in the early stages, but fast to assume a prominent place approaching the stretch turn, but could not catch the leaders. TRANSGRESSION and MARJORY BELL tired and the latter was shut off at the stretch turn. MAJEL and ANNEDIRE were never serous contenders.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $2,000. Blue Island Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:38. Off at 4:38. Winner, W. Woodward, jr.'s ch. c. (3), by Brown Prince II—Prodigy. Trained by W. C. Reichert. Value to winner, $1,450; second, $325; third, $150; fourth, $75. Time, 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:14, 1:39 3-5, 1:46 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROWN WISDOM, $7.20, $4.80, out; CALF ROPER, $7.06, out; PITTSBURGHER, out.

BROWN WISDOM assumed a good advantage rounding the first turn and, shaking off BETTY DERR in the first half mile, was never in serious danger thereafter. CALF ROPER moved up strongly during the back strech run and, lasting well, held PITTSBURGHER to second place. The latter was unable restraint, earlier, came strongly on the outside in the last quarter and would have been second in another stride. BETTY DERR acted badly at the barrier and, racing a trifle wide around the first turn, could never get to the front.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:05. Off at 5:07½. Winner, G. Henze's blk. f. (4), by Pebbles or Last Coin—Rocky Peg. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:15, 1:41, 1:48.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS PERFECTION, $16.06, $5.98, $3.30; PLAY BIRD, $4.10, $2.82; GREY KITTY, $2.50.

MISS PERFECTION stumbled after the start, but quickly recovered and, taking a good lead at once, had enough left to withstand the closing challenge of PLAY BIRD. The latter made up ground steadily and, finishing with courage, was gaining slowly. GREY KITTY loomed up dangerously at the stretch turn but, although finishing fairly well, could not get up. TISHYBO saved much ground on the back stretch to reach a prominent position, but tired wide in the stretch. CHENE was never dangerous and stopped badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:37. Off at 5:37½. Winner, E. Haughton's ch. f. (3), by Thunderer—Flora McFlimsey. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:14, 1:39 3-5, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REVERBERATE, $5.16, $3.60, $2.66; ENGLEWOOD, $4.50, $2.94; THEORIST JANE, $3.28.

REVERBERATE saved much ground around the first turn to get to the front and, increasing his lead as he went, won by a wide margin. ENGLEWOOD, under early restraint, was permitted to drop far out of it, then went wide when making his move at the stretch turn, but was best of the others. THEORIST JANE made up some ground. FLECHE D'ARGENT was also going well at the end. ESSIE and BROOMSHOT tired badly.

MATE IS OUT OF RACE AT SARATOGA

Ankle Hurt, Bostwick Star Won't Meet Twenty Grand.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Mate, champion 3-year old of the year, will not be a starter in the Saratoga Cup on the closing day of the Saratoga meeting.

A. C. Bostwick, owner of the title-holder, announced today that the colt has a swelling on his left hind hock, which has spread along near the ankle—evidently caused by a severe cut near the tendon. Bostwick believes the injury was caused by another horse jumping on Mate in the Kenner, the race in which the son of Prince Pal made an impressive comeback after losing the Saranac handicap.

Mate was slated to meet his three-year-old rival, Twenty Grand and Sun Beau, world's leading money winner, in the fifty-first running of the cup on September 5. If the injury responds to treatment he probably will be pointed for the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park, late in September.

Simmons Leads Ruth. In Hitting by .0003

(Associated Press.)

So hot is the fight between Al Simmons, of the Athletics, and Babe Ruth, of the Yankees, for the American League batting leadership that the official statistician had to add another digit to their figures to distinguish them yesterday. The Babe, as a result of two hits in three attempts against Chicago yesterday, pulled up within three one-thousandths points of Simmons, who was idle. Their respective percentages were .3849 and .3846.

Bill Terry, of the Giants, made five hits in eight trips against the Cubs to boost his mark to .349 and plant himself only 2 points behind the National League pace-setter, Virgil Davis, of the Phillies.

Washington's aggregation of women aquatic stars, the Washington Swimming Club, are promised their first taste of real competition tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the salt-water Airport Pool. Winners by huge margins in their meets this season to date, tonight the local girls must face the Bay Shore Swimming Club, of Baltimore, recognized as a team worthy of pressing the D. C. girls in all events.

There will be dashes at 60 and 120 yards (free style), backstroke and breaststroke events and high board diving. The Washington Swimming Club will again place its hopes in Onalene Lawrence, in diving and backstroke, and in Rita Augusterfer in the sprints. Lois Bates, W. S. C. ace, is still at camp.

The meet will be held under the auspices of the D. C. A. A. U. It is the first utdoor dual swimming meet to be held here for several years.

NAVAL HOSPITAL-G. P. O. IN 4-4 TIE IN LEAGUE PLAY-OFF

3,000 Watch Printers in Late Rally

Score 3 Runs in Last Inning to Avert Defeat by Sailors.

Harnsberger's Catch With 2 on in 6th Checks Threat.

DEADLOCKED at 4-4, and even in regards to hits and defensive play, contestants in the first game of the playoff in the Government League stood by yesterday as darkness ended the game between Naval Hospital and Government Printing Office in the eighth inning. The game will be played today, on the Ellipse, if the diamonds have become playable.

Three thousand fans viewed yesterday's game and declared it one of the best played on the Ellipse this season. The contest bristled with stirring moments, and was climaxed by a brilliant three-run rally in the last half of the eighth which enabled G. P. O. to tie up the score.

A play in the sixth inning probably robbed G. P. O. of its chances of winning the game. With two on and one out, the Printers had at last solved the delivery of Hull. Hiser, slugging second sacker for G. P. O. connected with one of the longest hits of the year on the Ellipse, but an almost sure homer was turned into a brilliant coup when Harnsberger made a remarkable running catch. Mosedale scored, but the side was retired when Gartland was caught between second and third.

Each team garnered six hits.

Schaaf 2-1 Favorite Over Campolo Tonight

New York, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The great promise Victorio Campolo brought up with him from the Argentine on the trail of his mighty countryman, Luis Angel Firpo, is due to flare anew in Ebbets Field tomorrow night or die out entirely for this and probably many more seasons.

Campolo, the gawky gaucho, a bigger man than Firpo, almost as powerful but without the great competitive spark of the wild bull, tackles Ernie Schaaf, Jack Sharkey's proxy in the heavyweight lists, over a twelve-round route in the Brooklyn ball park. Since losing a decision to Tommy Loughran, who also whipped Campolo the last time out, Schaaf has become a puncher and is a 2-to-1 favorite to beat the Argentinan.

Steve Hamas, former Penn State athlete and one of the likeliest-looking of all the young heavyweights, meets Mike de Santo, Italian, in one of the eight-round preliminaries.

M'EVOY FAILS ON COAST.

Los Angeles, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Lou McEvoy, Yankee right hander recently turned over to Hollywood, of the Pacific Coast League, will be returned to New York at once, Bill Dane, president, said today. McEvoy in five starts against coast hitters, failed to finish a game.

DI ESTE TOPS MD. GOLF FIELD

Indian Springer Has Low Gross, Net Figures in Class A.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE golf tournament staged on the course of the Indian Spring Club yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Maryland State Golf Association attracted a field of nearly 100 players, many of whom journeyed over from Baltimore to participate in the event. Competition was eighteen holes, medal play, with handicap allowance divided into three classes. Nine professionals, playing from scratch, also competed.

William P. DiEste, a member of the Indian Spring Club, turned in both the low gross and the low net score in Class A. He did not start until late in the afternoon, long after all the other players were well on their way around the course, and was forced to play the last three holes in the rain.

Turns in 76 Card Despite Handicap.

Notwithstanding this handicap he was 38 out and 38 in for a total of 76 and his handicap of 6 gave him a net 70. No other contestant approached this card, although W. J. English, Maryland Country Club; C. Ashmead Fuller, Chevy Chase; J. William Harvey, jr., Indian Spring, and W. Byrn Curtiss, Indian Spring, were tied for second with 80. Curtiss, out in 36, had a fine opportunity to lead the field, but unfortunately expended 44 strokes on the inward nine. DiEste's card was as follows:

Out .....4 5 4 4 5 2 5 6 3—38
In .....5 4 5 3 3 5 6 3 4—38—76

A. L. Houghton, Kenwood, won the low gross for the professionals, his card totaling 70, as follows:

Out .....5 3 4 4 4 3 6 4 3—36
In .....4 3 4 4 3 5 5 2 4—34—70

J. Munro Hunter, Indian Spring, was the only professional to threaten Houghton's leadership and he was three strokes in the rear, with 36—37—73.

The second low net in Class A in the amateur field was won by Roger F. Hall, Maryland Country Club, 83—12—71; with W. J. English, Maryland Country Club, third with 80—7—73.

Reds and Phillies Blank Each Other

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The Cincinnati Reds divided a double header with the Phils today, winning the first, 8-0, and dropping the second, 1-0. Lucas was master of the Phils in the first game and his splendid twirling, coupled with four timely hits by Cuccinello, flattened the Quakers. Big Jim Elliott had the better of a brilliant pitching duel with young Silas Johnson, of the Reds, in the second contest. Successive hits by McCurdy, Whitney and Mallon sent over the winning run in the fifth inning.

Hollywood Girls' Team To Play in Benefit Here

"Movie Stars" Meet Pullman All-Stars at Stadium Tuesday With Proceeds Going to Frank Cinnoti, Ill Sandlotter.

VISIONS of Greta Garbo stalking out on the pitcher's mound, tightening a belt, grinding some dirt into a shining baseball, and "Grove-ing" one hard and high past a wildly swinging batter were had yesterday when it was announced that the Hollywood Movie Stars, a girls' baseball team, will exhibit their wares here next Tuesday at Griffith Stadium, at 4:30 o'clock.

The crack girls' team, which is making a tour of the country and will shortly depart for Japan, will engage the Pullman All-Stars, 1930 winners of the city week-day series. The entire proceeds of the game will be turned over to the family of Frank Cinnoti, a local sandlot figure, who is ill at Sibley Hospital.

This announcement automatically cancels the proposed game between Pullman and French's All-Stars for Thursday, September 3.

Advance notices point out that the girls have been able to hold their own in the best semipro competition to be found in the country. Margaret Gisolo, first base, is the only girl ever to play in the American Legion national tournament. She has made several short pictures for Paramount.

Other stars include Peggy O'Neill, who is batting .346 for the season; Lucille Wilson, Jenny Lee and "Fargo" Pull, all of whom have worked before the camera.

The team is coached by Paddy Ryan, formerly of the New York Giants.

DIAMOND DUST FROM THE SANDLOTS

NEWS of football meetings and practices muscles into the sacred confines of Diamond Dust today, that being a sure sign that it is August and that many torrid days are left before baseball condescends to do a fadeout. But from this date you may watch the passing of the summer by noticing the ever-increasing notices on the grid game. You'll hardly need a calendar.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

SCREENING.

THE national malaria committee was given a considerable amount of information on wire screens by Mr. J. G. Ralston. The writer has found that dealers in wire screening, as well as the purchasing public, need to know what the essayist told the health workers. Screening is known as wire cloth. It is made from five materials.

The wire is rolled from ordinary rods of steel or other material. One foot of ordinary steel rod will make 500 lineal feet of wire. This wire is wound on drums or spools. It is woven on a loom into cloth, in essentially the manner cloth is made. Blacked, painted wire cloth is woven from steel wire, in a cloth in which there are twelve spaces in each inch. This is called 12 mesh. After being woven it is painted.

Electrogalvanized wire cloth is first woven from steel wire. The cloth is then immersed in a galvanized bath. Bright, galvanized wire cloth is woven with galvanized iron wire. The galvanized wire cloths are made in 12, 14 and 16 mesh weaves.

Copper wire cloth is made from commercial copper wire. Bronze cloth is made from a wire that is composed of an alloy, 90 per cent of which is copper. The color of the screening depends upon variation in the treatment of the metal. Bronze and copper screening is made in two sizes, 14 and 16 inch mesh.

The purchaser should always examine his material closely. Mr. Ralston says that what is bought as 16 mesh may be 14 mesh, or 14 in one direction and 15 in the other. If the mesh is not uniform, mosquitoes go in through the large holes and make no apologies for not permitting the small ones to keep them out. He says we may have to purchase and pay for 18 mesh cloth in order to get the mosquito-stopping qualities of 16 mesh. We are to remember, however, that he tells us there is no 18 mesh in warehouse stocks. Special orders bring special prices.

The lasting qualities of screening depend principally on the material used. Generally speaking, painted wire cloth gives way quickest and bronze wire lasts longest. It is economy to buy a good cloth. Bronze and copper may not be very durable near the sea water. The brine spray corrodes it. The whipping action of the wind is deleterious.

Copper cloth is rather soft and with little tendency to spring back into shape when pressed on. It is rather easy to punch holes in it. All iron wire cloths rust—some slowly, and others more rapidly. To prolong the life of painted wire cloth, wash it clean, dry it and then paint it. This should be done in alternate years with galvanized screening. Wash the dirt away, dry and brush with boiled linseed oil.

Any screening is more effective against insects if it is wiped off with kerosene at intervals.

EXPECTANT MOTHER.

Mrs. E. A. C. writes: Will you please send me your book on the care of the expectant mother?

I would like to know what is the best diet to make a good, strong baby.

REPLY.

I have no book on prenatal care. You can get such a book by writing your State health department or the Children's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

You should eat the ordinary amounts of standard, wholesome foods. You especially need milk, fruit juices and yeast or wheat germ.

Jail Better Than Idleness.

Hutchinson, Kans., (U.P.).—Prison walls look less gloomy now to two paroled inmates, who reurned voluntarily to the Kansas State reformatory here. Unemployment drove the boys back to the reformatory, which they thought a more comfortable place, with its three meals a day, than the outside world, with no jobs for them.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

It's the new wrap-around slip that follows the shaping of the figure.

It's made from a length of material.

The wrapped arrangement makes it shadow proof.

The selvedge edge of the material makes a smart neat finish for the lower edge of the slip.

The side edges of the slip may be finished with a picot edge or rolled in hem. This is about all the sewing required to make it, save for a few darts through the bodice, and to tack the shoulder straps in place.

It's straight from Paris!

You'll be thrilled with the easy manner in which it is made.

The back, too, has perforations for deep V for evening wear. The upper and lower edge may be trimmed with lace.

Crepe de chine, crepe satin and flat crepe are popularly used.

Style No. 900 may be had in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust.

SLIGHT LOSS MARKS DEALINGS IN STOCKS

Slow Trading Follows News of British Crisis; Day's Turnover Small.

New York, Aug. 26 (A.P.).—Financial markets again settled gradually in tediously slow trading today. Prominent bankers generally regarded the composition of the new British government formed to deal with the budget crisis as distinctly reassuring. Furthermore, some noted a lightening of pressure against sterling exchange on publication of the new cabinet.

Brokerage circles were inclined to attribute some of the hesitancy in the stock market to expectation of an announcement, possibly on wages, after the meeting of the U. S. Steel directors after the close, but the only comment available from the steel offices was that the meeting was merely a routine affair.

The price average of 90 representative stocks showed a net loss for the day of only 2-5 of a point, roughly approximating yesterday's sag of ½ point. The turnover of 867,290 shares was slightly above yesterday's. The average for the 20 rails again slipped off fractionally, to another new low for the past several years.

Dow Stocks Theory.

According to the rather widely accepted "Dow Theory" of stock fluctuations, a decline to a new low for the bear market by the industrial average would "confirm" the new low in the rails, and indicate that the major trend is still downward, but refusal of the industrial average to "confirm" the new low in the rails would indicate that the bear market has definitely touched bottom. Considerable encouragement, therefore, is found in the fact that the industrial average is holding about a dozen points above the bear market bottom of June 2, and has fluctuated within a range of only a few points for the past several weeks.

It was noted with considerable interest that today was the anniversary of the bottom reached by the stock market in the previous major business depression of 1921. It was recalled that recovery in the speculative markets was then hastened by a boom in cotton, resulting from a short crop, and that general business has helped by a flurry of building activity which quickly developed, replacing the shortage accumulated from the war years.

Few observers, scanning the horizon at this time, have been able to put a finger on any similar situations which might hasten a return of normal conditions, and pessimists are recalling the prolonged depression of the 1890's, in which this country suffered from a credit and gold shortage similar in some respects to the current situation in Central Europe.

Tobacco Shares Weak.

Tobacco shares were the only notably weak group in today's stock market. Losses of 2 to 3 points were shown by the American Tobacco and Liggett & Myers common and Class B shares and by U. S. Tobacco. The decline has been accompanied by brokerage gossip regarding the possible adverse effect of State taxes on cigarettes and increasing competition from cheap brands. American Can and McKeesport Tinplate also lost a couple of points, reflecting recent estimates of a decreased pack of vegetables this year. Few other losses exceeded a point.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, General Electric, General Motors, Radio, Chrysler and Westinghouse showed negligible changes at the close. In the rails few losses exceeded a point, although Boston & Maine, an infrequently traded issue, appeared at 30, a new low for the year and off 3 points from the last transaction. The directors again announced no action on the common dividend, as they did last May.

The reports of net railway operating revenues appearing for July have had a depressing effect upon the carrier shares. The weekly freight car loading report, showing a gain of about 8,000 cars from the previous week, however, was mildly encouraging. In the previous week there was a drop of roughly 22,000 cars.

Oils About Steady.

The oil shares held about steady. The weekly petroleum statistics, showing the largest drop in crude output on record, however, failed to show the full picture, since the complete east Texas closing was not in effect for the full time covered by the figures.

In foreign exchanges the strong support being accorded the pound sterling was reflected in a ⅛-cent advance for cable transfers, which ruled at $4.85 15-16. Other currencies were generally steady to firm.

In commodities, corn rallied, closing ⅝ to 1⅜ cents higher, as receipts lightened. Wheat, however, lost ½ to ⅝ of a cent, reflecting a little better crop report from Canada. Cotton futures declined rather substantially, then recovered to close only 35 to 50 cents a bale lower.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Trading in cotton was quiet today and prices moved within a comparatively narrow range.

December contracts, after selling off to 7.06 or 22 points net lower, recovered 14 points of the loss, closing at 7.20 compared with 7.28 at the close of the previous day. Final tone of the market was very steady at net declines of 7 to 10 points.

The opening was barely steady 12 to 16 points lower under selling influenced by the lower Liverpool cables and a feeling that the advance of the previous day had somewhat eased the technical position. Offerings were fairly well absorbed by trade buying and covering, but there was no aggressive support and prices worked off later, with October declining to 6.85 and March to 7.37 during the early afternoon, or about 18 to 22 points net lower.

The offerings were comparatively light, however, and the market stiffened up in the last hour when there appeared to be a spurt of covering. This may have been promoted by the failure of sellers to become active on the decline, and the fact that very little Southern selling was in evidence during the afternoon. October sold up to 6.94 and March to 7.50 or about 13 to 14 points from the lowest and last prices were within a point or two of the best.

Some Southern selling was reported here during the early trading, but it was evidently in no great volume, the bulk of the early pressure being attributed to liquidation or reselling by buyers of yesterday, while there also seemed to be some selling by Liverpool and the continent on the narrow differences between New York and the Liverpool market. A favorable view of the day's weather news no doubt contributed to the decline and probably tended to strengthen an impression that the crop has been making satisfactory progress for this season of the year. Offerings tapered off to very small volume on the decline, and while no fresh factor was mentioned, prices advanced in the late trading on covering or rebuying by some of the early sellers.

Liverpool cables reported hedging local and Bombay liquidation in that market. Exports today 5,091, making 130,603 so far this season. Port receipts, 11,625. U. S. port stocks, 2,744,041.

LEADING BONDS SAG TO NEW LOW LEVEL

Average Price of 30 Issues Is 91.6; Rails Hardest Hit in Decline.

New York, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—The bond market declined irregularly today, although various groups of issues showed rising tendencies at times. The average for 30 leading issues composed of ten bonds each of public utility, railroad and industrial companies touched a new low level for recent years at 91.6, a net loss of two-tenths of a point.

Railroad loans were the hardest hit of the domestic bonds and a number of them reached new bottom prices. The average price for ten leading rail issues reached a new low also at 91.3, a net decline of three-tenths of a point for the day. New York, Chicago & St. Louis series C 4½s of 1978 showed outstanding weakness, dropping to a new low at 50 and closing with a net loss of 3 points at 51.

It was announced in Washington that the Nickel Plate had applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to issue $10,500,000 additional of these bonds of which $6,000,000 would be pledged with the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York as security for a note or notes of equal aggregate amount and that the rest of the issue would be available for a similar purpose.

Continuing unfavorable reports of July earnings of the leading carriers were a bearish influence on the rail group as a whole. Chicago & Northwestern series A 4¾s, Great Northern 7s of 1936, Erie refunding and improvement 5s of 1967 and of 1975, Missouri Pacific series F and G 5s and St. Louis San Francisco 4½s of 1978 were active rails to reach new low levels. The pressure on the rails was most apparent in the afternoon.

Foreign obligations also provided many of the widest declines, although like the rails they had steady moments and some of them even made good gains. Some of the obligations of Australia, Brazil, Germany and Italy were in the latter group. United Kingdom and Ireland 5½s of 1937 started the day strong, but ended with a fractional loss after a heavy turnover. Harpen Mining 6s, which is usually inactive, slumped 16 points to 59 on small sales.

Loans of the United States Government made moderate losses in quiet trading.

Public utility and industrial bonds were not so active as the railroad or foreign groups, but both of them declined irregularly. Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s of 1951 and 5½s of 1945 were very active at fractional recessions.

Curb Review

New York, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Speculative interest in curb stocks today, such as it was, was concentrated largely on oil shares.

Fluctuations elsewhere for the most part were extremely narrow. The market as a whole maintained a barely steady tone. The turnover of 180,000 shares was only slightly larger than yesterday's slim volume.

Standard Oil of Nebraska made a net gain of 5⅞ points and Standard of Ohio jumped 3¾ points in a few transfers. The market in both of them is thin and wide fluctuations are common. Solar Refining was much more active and closed with 1 point gain. An agreement for the acquisition of the Lima, Ohio, plant of the latter company by the Standard of Ohio was announced last night in Cleveland

Standard of Indiana and Gulf Oil closed slightly higher Ohio Oil Co. 6 per cent preferred appreciated 1 point.

The latest report of Crude Oil production showed the largest decrease on record, while not fully reflecting the East Texas shutdown. Reports of impending increases in gasoline prices are current in the petroleum industry.

Public Utility shares provided a smaller proportion of the total turnover than usual. Cities Service and Electric Bond & Share were the two most active of the more important utilities. The former closed steady but the latter was fractionally lower. American Superpower ended the day unchanged after a few sales. Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania jumped 2⅞ points on odd lot deals. American Gas & Electric closed 1 point higher.

Aluminum Co. of America jumped 3 points then lost half its gain. Net gains of 1 point or more were made by Cooper-Bessemer, Bulova Watch preferred, Pratt & Lambert, Sherwin Williams AA preferred and Deere.

MAN KILLED AS CAR CRUSHES SKULL BY FALL AFTER CRASH

Ned W. Foster, 45, Trying to Get Out of Vehicle, Meets Death.

TWO OTHER OCCUPANTS ARE SLIGHTLY INJURED

Driver, Released on Bond, Is Charged With Operating Auto While Drunk.

Attempting to get out of an automobile which was teetering on its side after an accident on the Queen's Chapel road near the District line, Ned W. Foster, 45 years old, was killed yesterday when the car fell on his head. Foster's home was at 1609 Lincoln road northeast.

Foster was riding in an automobile with two other men just over the line in Maryland. According to Prince Georges County police, he was a passenger in a machine driven by Edward B. McConnell, which also contained George Bowman.

McConnell's car, police said, hit another machine and ran up on a bank. As the car paused for a moment before toppling over, Foster attempted to get out, and his skull was crushed beneath the machine as it fell.

McConnell, who lives at 623 Franklin street northeast, was arrested on charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving. Later he was released on bond of $2,200, and sent to Sibley Hospital for treatement of slight injuries. Bowman, who gave an address on Bates street northeast, went to the same institution for treatment.

Struck Simmons' Car.

Policemen H. G. Mathen and C. M. Blanchard, who arrested McConnell, said his machine struck one belonging to Dr. Maynard Simmons, superintendent of the Pinehurst Sanitarium, on Queen's Chapel road.

The Bladensburg Fire Rescue Squad was summoned to the scene and found Foster dead, members said. They gave emergency treatment to the other two men. An inquest has been set for Monday at 7:30 o'clock by Judge Robert E. Altemus. Constable Blanchard was named foreman of the jury.

Marine Reserves Open Range Work

Different Battalion Will Fire Each Day; Parade for General Friday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Virginia Beach, Va., Aug. 25.—The rifle range schedule of the Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade went into effect today with the Second Battalion of the Twentieth Regiment taking first turn. Instruction and firing are under the supervision of Capt. Francis Geraci, range officer. Each afternoon for the balance of the week a different battalion will fire.

The officers and enlisted personnel were guests at a dance tonight at the New Ocean View Casino, arranged by F. E. Turin, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Frederick Hodges, manager of the convention bureau of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce. This is the first of a series of entertainments planned. The brigade orchestra, under the direction of Lieut. Arthur Harper, furnished the music. Lieut. Justin Shook headed a delegation of officers who greeted the hostesses at the dance.

Tomorrow afternoon the First Battalion, Twentieth Regiment, commanded by Maj. Harvey L. Miller, will parade for the instruction of the balance of the brigade in preparation for the parade Friday when Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller will arrive in camp for a week-end visit.

Thieves Get $150 Gems As Doctor Takes Holiday

Several pieces of jewelry valued at $150 were yesterday reported stolen from the residence of Dr. Charles White, of 1420 Sixteenth street northwest.

Dr. White returned from his vacation Sunday and found one of the rear windows of his house open. He took an inventory and discovered the loss, though the exact date of the entry could not be determined.

Burnham, second vice commander; Charles Haslup, third vice commander; A. J. Kearney, adjutant, and John Shultz, financial officer. Norwood E. Cassedy is the retiring commander.

$20,000 Crash Damages Asked of Pittsburgh Man

John W. Kendall, of Pittsburgh, was sued for $20,000 yesterday by F. W. Franklin, of 1743 Church street northwest, for injuries he received when an automobile operated by Kendall collided head-on with another machine at Waynesburg, Pa., October 4, 1930.

Franklin alleges that Kendall was speeding when the machine smashed into a truck that was parked along side the road. The suit alleges severe personal injuries.

CRUISING SPEAKEASY IS LAID TO SUSPECT

Man Seized on Pennsylvania Avenue; Other Persons Also Arrested.

Washington's second "cruising speakeasy" was seized and its alleged bartender arrested by vice squad policemen who also took into custody two men and two women in other liquor forays last night.

On Pennsylvania avenue northwest, near Third street, the same spot where a month ago Mike Mantonis was said to have been dispensing pints from his car, Thomas J. Brooks, 28 years old, of 301 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, sold liquor to Policemen J. K. Baker and H. G. Wanamaker, police said.

The officers placed illegal possession charges against Brooks after a search of the car brought to light seven half pints of alleged whisky.

Exactly one week after their residence had been searched and possession charges filed against them, Mary and Dominick Anastasi, 35 and 43, respectively, of 1324 Four and a half street southwest, again suffered police intrusion and were held on liquor charges.

On last night's visit, police said they found 16 pints of colored whisky and 240 bottles of beer. According to records, Dominick pleaded guilty to the previous charges, and charges against his wife, Mary, were nolle prossed.

At 1130 Fourth street southeast, George Jannett, 31 years old, and his wife, Frances, 32 years old, were held on illegal possession charges when search disclosed 10 pints of alleged whisky.

Policemen J. F. Dankmeyer and E. L. Shelton arrested Raymond Riggs, 28, yesterday when he allegedly got out and ran as they approached his auto, parked in Pierce court northwest. He was charged with illegal possession of 32 quarts of liquor, which the policemen say they found in the car. Riggs said he is from Bladensburg, Md.

Legation Attache Bruised in Crash

Egyptian Diplomatic Aid Figures in Collision on M Street.

Slight injuries were received by Andre Cattaui, 39 years old, attache of the Egyptian Legation, early yesterday when the automobile he was driving was in collision with another machine occupied by colored persons at New Hampshire avenue and M street northwest.

Mr. Cattaui received bruises and suffered from slight shock as a result of the accident. He refused medical treatment. Two colored women in the other machine were slightly injured and treated at Emergency Hospital.

They were: Salenia Dickson, 28 years old, of 933 N street northwest, and Irene Edds, 20 years old, of Herndon, Va. The car in which they were riding was driven by Theodore Aning, 29 years old, of Sterling, Va., according to the police report.

Woman Asks $20,000 For Injuries in Collision

Alleged permanent injuries sustained when a street car collided with a taxicab in which she was riding at Vermont avenue and O street northwest, May 8, yesterday was made the basis for a $20,000 damage suit against the City Cab Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co. by Florence R. Hill, of the Burlington Hotel.

Through Attorneys Clephane, Latimer, and Hall, the plaintiff asserts that ever since the accident she has suffered great anguish, and she has been told that her injuries are of such a nature that a full recovery is not possible.

Thief Takes Rare Stamps Amid Throng

Police are looking for some one, in all likelihood a philatelist, whose zeal caused him to ignore the risk presented by throngs of shoppers and pilfer a stamp collection yesterday afternoon which was on display in busy F street. The victim of his initiative is Harry B. Mason, proprietor of a stamp shop in the National Union Building, at 918 F street.

Dominating the display, which was inclosed in a glass case placed in the building's entrance, were 64 $5 stamps, 1916 issue, used on one package placed in the mail. Their value was placed at $100.

Along with this group went a 10-cent Confederate stamp, worth $17.50, and two 1847 specimens valued at $25. The culprit's shrewdness as a philatelist was shown, according to the proprietor, by the fact that he ignored several other lots when he opened the panel, probably with a duplicate key, and carefully took his choice while scores of pedestrians passed.

OFFICER IS ASSIGNED AS GEORGETOWN AID

Capt. William C. DeWare, of Fort Washington, Replaces Ill Instructor.

Capt. William C. DeWare has been relieved from duty with the Twelfth Infantry at Fort Washington, Md., and detailed as an instructor in military science at Georgetown University, replacing Capt. Raymond L. Shoemaker, who is in Walter Reed Hospital recovering from a serious operation. Capt. Shoemaker will be unable to return to duty for several months.

At Georgetown Capt. DeWare will be an assistant to Maj. William H. Hobson, who commands the military unit. The other instructor is Lieut. Henry J. Hunt, jr.

Capt. DeWare is now at Camp Perry taking part in the national rifle matches, and he will report for duty at Georgetown the middle of September. He is an expert rifleman.

A graduate of the University of Texas, he went through the first training camp for officers in 1917 and served during the World War. He has taken both the company officer's course and the advanced course at the Army School at Fort Benning and also served there as an instructor before being detailed to Fort Washington.

Gas Company Data Held Incomplete

Hartman Asks More Detailed Report on Appliance Adjustments.

Harleigh H. Hartman, acting chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, yesterday informed the Washington Gas Co. that the report submitted on adjustments to gas appliances during the last three months is incomplete.

More detailed information was asked and that the 30,837 adjustments should be classified as (1) those made as part of the special pressure survey, (2) those made on complaints and service calls, and (3) those on new installations.

The commission staff has been put to work gathering data for the pressure hearing scheduled to open September 14. The question of adjustments is expected to be a point of attack on the gas companies.

HANGED MAIL CLERK SUICIDE, JURY FINDS

Autopsy Shows Suspicious Blow on Fincham's Head Not Death Cause.

A verdict of suicide was rendered yesterday by a coroner's jury in the death of Joseph L. Fincham, 36, a railway mail clerk, whose body was found Monday swinging from a tree in a grove near Twentieth and H streets northeast.

Death had been caused by strangulation, according to the autopsy performed by Dr. Joseph D. Rogers. The blow on the back of Fincham's head, which had been a subject of suspicion and brought on the coroner's inquest, was found to be only a minor one.

Testimony was heard from William Maxwell, James M. Howe and James C. Wilkinson, who found the body. Dr. Nevitt said he believed that the body had been there about two days.

Tellos Priest, chief clerk of the Railway Mail Service, testified that Fincham had been a clerk with the service for fifteen years, working on the run between Charleston, S. C., and Washington. He said Fincham had made a good record.

It is believed that despondency over financial difficulties was the motive for the act. Fincham's home was in Manassas, Va. He is survived by a wife and two small daughters.

Two Arrested in Raid Held Under Mann Act

At the request of defense counsel, a charge of violating the Mann act against Julia Modesta and Florino Morano, both of Philadelphia, was continued yesterday in Police Court, until August 31.

The couple were arrested last Saturday when a squad of headquarters detectives led by Capt. Edward Kelly, raided an apartment on Twelfth street. Three others were seized in the raid but no charges were placed against them. A charge of bringing a girl from New Jersey to Washington, was placed against the couple after police had questioned those found in the apartment.

Sewer Contract Awarded.

Roy D. Schlegel was awarded a contract yesterday by the District Commissioners to construct the Grant Park sanitary sewer in the vicinity of Hillside place and Blaine street northeast on his low bid of $3,081.25.

FIGHT ON TRANSFER OF MONROE SCHOOL IS HELD UNAVAILING

Petition Will Resist Giving Building to Use of Colored Students.

CITIZENS OF PARK VIEW HOLD PROTEST SESSION

Officials Believe Chances Are Slight of Board Rescinding Order.

Despite a protest by more than 100 residents of the Park View community, following a mass meeting of residents of the section, it was predicted last night in District school administrative circles that the Board of Education will not rescind its order transferring the Monroe School to the colored division. The mass meeting drew up a petition opposing the change.

Although the majority of school board members are out of the city, Franklin School authorities who are here said that they see little chance of the board reconsidering its decision. In this event, action turning the Monroe School over to colored children will go into effect next month, when schools reopen.

Circulating Petition.

Meanwhile, residents of the Park View section are circulating the petition, which will be submitted to the board next month at its first meeting of the new school year. One of the main objections to the transfer, as pointed out in the petition, is that former students of the Monroe School will have to walk several blocks over dangerous intersections to reach the Park View School, the only other white school in the community.

School authorities declare that the Park View School is large enough to accommodate the students who will be transferred from the Monroe School.

Support Park View Position.

J. Clinton Hiatt, chairman of the public safety committee of the Columbia Heights Citizens Association, announced last night that his association will support the Park View residents in their opposition to the transfer. This association last winter asked the board to withhold action on the transfer until it had conferred with citizens in the affected neighborhood. The board failed to do this, according to Mr. Hiatt.

The Park View Citizens Association last winter recommended that the Monroe School be kept in the white division as long as it was possible to do so. John S. 3 Boys, Marooned on Rock, Taken Off in Nick of Time

CARL HAVENER,
21, of the Chain Bridge Store, who yesterday rescued three boys from the rapids of Great Falls after the police rescue squad and harbor patrol boat failed to reach them.

Youth Effects Rescue as Fire Rescue Squad and Others Fail.

While several hundred passing motorists watched from Chain Bridge, Carl Havener, 21, of the Chain Bridge Store, yesterday afternoon staged a rescue of three colored boys marooned on a rock in the lower rapids below Great Falls. Caught by the rising tide, the three brothers were unable to get back to shore when Havener rowed and pulled his small flat-bottomed rowboat to a position where they could board it, releasing them from a three-hour imprisonment.

The boys, George, 18; Walter, 14, and Charles Hyson, 13, all of Merrifield, Va., had gone fishing with Francis Holland, colored, of 2248 Ontario place northwest. They ventured far out on the rocks to find an especially good hole, but when they turned to find the way back their path was barred by the rising waters. Holland, who had remained nearer the shore, returned to Chain Bridge, where he appealed for help. The Fire Rescue Squad was called, but was unable to get near the boys. A boat was then dispatched from the Harbor Police Station, but it could not get as far as the bridge because of the rocks.

As the water continued to rise it was seen that the boys would soon be swept away if aid did not quickly reach them. Havener then put out in his dory and after 30 minutes of rowing and wading in the rapids reached a point where the boys could get to the boat.

Once free, the light boat was quickly carried back to the bridge by the swirling waters.

UNDERGROUND PHONE CABLE SHIFTS NEAR

Company Directors Vote to Proceed With Rerouting Triangle Area Lines.

The closing of streets due to the building program between Seventh, Fourteenth and B streets and Pennsylvania avenue, necessitates the rerouting of underground telephone cable, which was authorized yesterday at a meeting of the board of directors of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

District authorities have notified the telephone company that all property abutting the street to be closed in construction of the new municipal center and triangle project has been acquired by the Government and all underground structures must be removed or abandoned in advance of excavations for the new building.

Telephone company engineers will reroute the cables which are necessary to serve the District Building and the Southern Railway Building. The cable to be installed in the Twelfth street conduit will contain 2,400 wires. This cable will contain three times as many wires as the cable used in 1900.

If the new cable had increased in size in proportion to the additional wires it contains, this project would have cost ten times the $4,000 it will take to install the new cable.

Other extension work authorized by the company officials yesterday was underground cable relief for the northeastern section of the Cleveland-Emerson central office. So far this year, the company has appropriated $2,722,060 for additions and improvements.

WRIT ASKED TO BAR U. S. CONDEMNATION

Bliss Properties, Inc., Also Seeks Especial Appeal to Get Around Delays.

Trustees of Bliss Properties, Inc., yesterday launched in the Court of Appeals two attempts to prevent the Government from proceeding with the condemnation of 78 parcels of land, owned by Bliss Properties, by a single jury.

Through attorney William C. Sullivan, the Court of Appeals was asked for a writ of prohibition stopping Justice F. D. Lette, of the District Supreme Court, from going any further in the impanseling of a condemnation jury. The Court of Appeals was also asked to grant an especial appeal which would permit the land owners to bring their case to a hearing on its merits without the usual lengthy delay in obtaining a hearing.

Attorney Sullivan contends that the large holdings which he represents are so diversified in their character that no one jury of five land owners would be capable of fixing a fair value for each. He pointed out that the land is improved by hotels, stores, gasoline stations, and other buildings. It was estimated that it would require 90 days to value the land.

The appeal was taken after Justice Letts had signed an order, at the request of Henry H. Glassie, in charge of the Government condemnation work, to draw a jury. The jury will now be drawn on September 9.

The property to be condemned lies between the Union Station and the Capitol and it is to be used for a street between the two points and also for building sites.

The hearing of the two appeals can not go forward until Chief Justice Martin returns to the bench next month.

6-Month Jail Sentence For Woman's Assailant

A six-month jail sentence was imposed upon George Thomas, 45 years old, in Police Court yesterday when it was testified that he had seized Mrs. Elizabeth Cooke, of 2511 Seventeenth street northwest, on Georgia avenue near the ball park.

Mrs. Cooke and her husband were on their way to attend a wrestling show when Thomas is alleged to have grabbed the woman. He said that he lurched up and had no recollection of the incident. Thomas was also given 10 days on a charge of intoxication.

SHOE DEALER FREED BY CORONER'S JURY AFTER MAN'S DEATH

WITNESSES AT INQUEST TELL OF ALTERCATION

Two Men Had Participated in Fight Over Note Nearing Maturity.

That Maurice Narcisenfeld, 42, died as the result of natural causes was the verdict handed down yesterday by a coroner's jury.

An inquest was held when it was learned that the deceased man had been in a fist fight with his brother-in-law, Jacob Farber.

Narcisenfeld, who lived at 3150 Nineteenth street, died Sunday in Emergency Hospital from a cerebral hemorrhage caused by "external violence," according to an autopsy performed by Deputy Coroner Joseph D. Rogers.

Brother-in-Law Released.

The altercation with Farber took place at Farber's home, 1124 I street northwest, on August 16. Farber was arrested, awaiting outcome of the inquest, but was released when the jury's verdict was announced.

Narcisenfeld was supposed to be in financial difficulties and appealed to Farber who indorsed a note for $3,000. When the note neared maturity the two men met and blows were exchanged. They were separated after a few moments, however, by Farber's wife, Millie, Narcisenfeld's sister.

Testify of Tumor.

Relatives of the dead man testified at the hearing that Narcisenfeld died as the result of a tumor of the brain which was not caused in any way by the alleged fight. An operation for tumor was performed Saturday at Johns Hopkins Hospital by Dr. Walter Dandy and Narcisenfeld was brought back to Emergency Hospital where he died Sunday.

Both Narcisenfeld and Farber were in the shoe business, the former having two stores on Seventh street and the latter, one.

Man Falls 20 Feet and Lies Half Hour Waiting for Help

Charles Goldsborough, 58-year-old painter, who had fallen 20 feet to a concrete areaway when he lost his balance while working on a scaffold at 3207 Northampton street northwest yesterday, lay unaided for half an hour before a police patrol car arrived and took him to Emergency Hospital with compound fractures of both legs, a sprained back and multiple contusions.

It was learned that a resident near the house on which the painter was working called for an ambulance at 1:46 p. m., only to be told that the ambulance was out. Fourteenth Precinct police then were notified and they, according to hospital authorities, agreed to take care of the case.

About 30 minutes after Goldsborough fell, a police car arrived and bore him to the hospital, where his condition was said to be critical. No effort is said to have been made to summon the rescue squad. Goldsborough lives at 716 Virginia avenue southeast.

Detective Sergeant O. W. Mansfield was assigned yesterday as official cowboy to round up the score or more of trained horses which were stolen from the 101 Ranch Wild West Show during the last few weeks.

He said that they were taken by circus employes and illegally sold after the show went "broke."
